Going for Harrison. CIEVELAND'S WORDS OF WISDOM

In His Speech to the Business Men's Association at New York Last Night.

New York, November 1.-The democratic mass meeting tonight in Lenox lyceum was a grand success. The desire to hear Mr. Cleveland speak was overwhelming and he was accorded a most gratifying reception. The meeting was under the auspices of the Business Men's Democratic Association. Mr. J. Edward Simmons, president of the Fourth Narional bank, and also of the association, introduced Mr. Cleveland in a few appropriate remarks. He received such an ovation as is only accorded to greatness. The demonstration lasted many minutes

Mr. Cleveland's Speech.

Fellow Citizens: We have nearly reached the last hours of discussion in a campaign characterized by many unusual features and incidents. I venture the assertion that never in the recollection of any one here present has a presidential canvass been carried on with such a lack of noise and excitement and in such an apparent atmosphere of popular thoughtfulness. If this is actually the condition, and if our voters are really thoughtful, it should be a cause of congratulation on the part of every American citizen, for it must be that sober deliberation in the efforts of right of suffrage is the foundation of our hope for national perpetuity. None of us can complain of a political result which represents the conscientious and clear convictions of a majority of our people. When these convictions prevail it is the misfortune, or fault of the party if it is defeated because the principles it advocates are not understood by our voters, of if understood are not accepted. If we assume that the quiet of the campaign is attributed to thoughtfulness among our people and a deliberate sense of patriotic duty in the exercise of their suffrages would seem to be no place for fear or misgiving as to the result on the part of those who support democratic principles. In exactly the form they are involved in the present campaign these principles were presented two years ago to the voters of the country and received their. Mr. Cleveland's Speech.

Since then the drift of public opinion has been in our direction and doctrines opposed to ours have been more than ever discredited. It must be conceded, too, that the intelligent and disinterested men who have left the ranks of our opponents and joined our stand-ard, are exceptionally numerous and influen-

The fact that with all these things in our favor we are still not absolutely sure of success, would be startling if we did not know the desperate and disreputable methods which confront us. Our opponents, vanquished in every argument worthy of presentation to the reason of our countrymen, have appended to their passions and prejudice and through the distribution of most impudent lies concerning the record and action of our party and its caudidates. This, however, is not their main reliance mor is it our greatest danger. It is a confession most humiliating to American citizenship. What with a cause so thoroughly entrenched in reason, and commending itself so clearly to the intelligence of patriotic Americans, we daily hear predictions of republican success, based upon the ability of that party to purchase the votes of the people. A little reflection, it seems to me, cannot fail to arouse the American conscience to the wickedness as well as the The fact that with all these things in our Peril of a Debauched Suffrage. It is the plain proposition that our govern-ment is only true to the principles upon which it rests when in its operation it represents the it rests when in its operation it represents the bonest and intelligent sentiments of the people. When it does not, its vigor and its very life are gone and it remains but the mere semblance of free government, the weakest and most deformed plan of rule that ever deluded mankind. It can then no longer defend the rights of all, because rights will be forgotten in the capriclous bestowal of favors. It will then no longer be the proud manifestation of strength and virtue of a free people, because it will only be a miserable instrument of craft and selfshness.

Who of all those who believe our government was created to bless the American people and benefit mankind will deny that the corruption of our suffrage paves the way to these conditions?

The time has surely come when those who see the beginning of this corruption should tions?

The time has surely come when those who see the beginning of this corruption should look beyond it and beneath it, in an endeavor to discover the source of our danger and the forces which give it deadly strength.

It has its source in the perversion of our government to the furtherance of limited and special interests and in the invitation thus extended to anticipate the continuance of governmental favor in compensation for partisan support. The forces.

Reluited it are Green's and Selff threes.

Behind It Are Greed and Selft hness. ing to prostitute the suffrage of the pec willing to prostitute the suffrage of the people to pecuniary gain.

In the light of these considerations, there is nothing unnatural in the situation of the pending canvass. When bur countrymen yield to temptation and turn their backs upon the broad and disinterested patriotism that should characterize their citizenship; when they reach the point where they are willing to subordinate political duty to business gain, it is a short step to active participation in the schemes of corruption having for their object the retention in power of a party by which unearned business profits are promised. The movement begins with corruption by means of these promises of the beneficiaries themselves. They are thereafter willing instruments for the corruption of others, to instigate to activity by an obligation, to aid a party which has favored them and stimulated by the expectation of further especial besents.

by the expectation of further expectal besits.

This deal between a political party and private enterprises by which governmental aid is promised in exchange for partisan support, is covered by a pretext of care for the business interests of the country. While we readily concede the importance of these interests, and while we hold that no political party should be unmindful of them, or heedless of their prosperity, we insist that no plea for their promotion shall be used to justify political methods which endanger the integrity and beneficence of our institutions.

Since, therefore, the fair name of our business interests has thus been used in disreputable service. I have deemed it appropriate to call the attention to these things in an assemblage gathered together under the auspices of the Business Men's Club. It seems to be peculiarly fit and proper that patriotic business men of our country should repudiate the suggestion that care for the interests they have in their keeping can be an excuse for corrupt political practice and they can teach with especial authority a lesson that business interests are the safest under a fair administration of an honest and just government, representing unbought suffrage of our people.

Beyond this, however, our business men and all other Americans, who love their country, ought to make a common cause in an effort to

of our government, invites the corruption of our voters and menaces the sure foundations of political virtue.

In the sincere and disinterested advocacy of sensible tariff reform, we labor to remove the temptations that beset the integrity of our people and strive to preserve that justice and equality which our government was created to guarantee to all our countrymen.

Let us at all times bear in mind that it is the people's cause we have in hand, and, while warning them of danger, let us never

An Ovation to Mr. Cleveland.

An Ovation to Mr. Cleveland.

Mr. Cleveland remained on the platform until the cose of the meeting. The doors of the hall had been left open and the building by this time was crowded to its utmost capacity. Mr. Cleveland had great difficult in getting away. Avery one on the platform wanted to shake hands at once, and a large number of those in the hall jumped to the platform and tried to get to the 'x-president. Chairs were upset and the people were almost trampling on each other. Mr. Cleveland was virtually held a prisoner by his enthusiastic admirers for some minutes, but at last, by the aid of half a dozen politic men he escaped to the cab, which was awaiting him at the entrance.

JUDGE GRESHAM'S VIEWS

He Says He Is Going to Vote for Cleveland and Tells Why. New York, November 1.-Don M. Dickinson, chairman of the democratic national campaign committee, has received from Bluford Wilson, who was solicitor of the treasury during the administration of President Grant, a letter from Judge Gresham, which sets at rest all questions as to the fact and manner of support of

Cleveland and Stevenson by that statesman:

To Hon. Bluford Wilson, Springfield, Ill.— Dear Major: I have your letter of the Zist instant. I did tell you at Springfield that after mature reflection I had determined to yote for Mr. Cleveland this fall because I after mature reflection I had determined to vote for Mr. Cleveland this fall because I agree, in the main, with his views on the tariff and do not believe in the principles embodied in the McKinley bill. I adhere to that determination and have said nothing indicating a change of purpose. It is not true that with my knowledge or consent the president was asked to appoint me to any office. It is not true that I requested any one to do anything to obtain the republican nomination this year. It is not true that I voted for Cleveland in 1888. I voted the republican ticket at every presidential election since the party was or ganized, except in 1864, when I was not able to go to the polls. The republicans were pledged to a reduction of the war tariff long before 1888 and during the campaign of that year the pledge was renewed with emphasis, again and again. Instead of keeping that promise, the McKinley bill was passed in the interest of a favored class, and not for the benefit of the whole people. It neither enhanced the price of farm products nor benefited habor. Wages are and ever will be regulated by supply and demand, Duties were Imposed upon some articles so high as to destroy competition, and foster trusts and monopolies.

I think you will agree with me that this was to destroy competition, and foster trusts and monopolies.

I think you will agree with me that this was an abandonment of the doctrine of moderate incidental protection. The tariff is now the most important question before the people, and whatever others may do, I shall exercise the right of individual judgment and vote according to my convictions. I think with you that a republican can vote for Cleveland without joining the democratic party. How I shall vote in the future will depend upon the questions at issue. Yours very truly Sawing Wood and Saying Nothing. Chicago, November 1.—Judge Gresham was seen at his residence tonight by a correspondent of the Associated Press and told of the giving out of his letter tonight. "Well, what of it?" he remarked.

"I have nothing to say."

"That letter is acknowledged by you,

"Who gives it out?" asked the judge.
"Don Dickinson, in New York."
"Well, I have nothing to say about it."
"You will neither affirm nor deny that you wrote the letter?"
"I have nothing to say and that's enough."

The strongest objection to the bill passed by the house in 1890 is, that it is designed for one part of the country only. He came here at the solicitation of the Cleveland club of Yale university and of some members of the faculty of that institution. A number of the faculty sat on the platform.

He answered Mr. Depew, who had criticized him before the Yale republican club a week ago. The speaker then proceeded to demonstrate that the republican party as conceived in its infancy, and the republican party to which he belonged had ceased to exist, and he its stead was an organization of political corruption, fostered by bounties acquired under the system of so-called protective tariff. He attacked pension legislation, silver schemes and the force bill and said that for these reasons he had left the party.

A Peculiar Story That Comes from Third Party Leaders.

THEY SAY HARRISON WILL WIN.

Even if He Does Not Secure a Majority of the College.

WEAVER ELECTORS TO GO TO HIM

In Consideration of The'r | Being Allowed to Organize the House-How Matt Quay Figures It Out.

Washington, November 1.-(Special.)-Editor Dunning, of the people's party national organ here, has been talking about the election in a way that leads to the suspicion that a deal has been arranged between Weaver's managers and the republicans.

How much influence or information Dunning may have is hard to judge; but from what he says it is only fair to infer that he at least thinks that, in case neither Cleveland nor Harrison has 223 votes in the electoral college, enough of the Weaver electors will vote for Harrison to give him a majority and thus prevent the election being thrown into the house of representatives where Cleveland would be sure to be chosen. It seems incredible that the republicans and the people's party leaders could be so desperate or fatuous as to enter into such a bargain with any expectation of being able to carry it out; but no other inference than such a deal is contemplated can be drawn from Editor Dun ning's utterances. Dunning, in an interview, today, declared that the third party would get the electoral votes of Nebras ka, Kansas and the four silver states. But notwithstanding this he declared further that Harrison would be chosen president beyond any doubt and that the election would not be permitted to go into the house of representatives in the event that both Harrison and Cleveland did not have the necessary 223 votes in the electoral college to choose either of them. This means that enough of the Weaver electors will vote for Harrison to make up his shortage and elect him should he fail to get 223 votes on popular ballot.

recall the fact that one of the electors on the Kolb ticket in Alabama, when on the witness stand the other day, declared under oath that if he was elected he would vote for Harrison for president. Another thing which Dunning said was that in the event the people's party held the balance of power in the next house of representatives, its members would combine with the republicans and organize the house. This has lead to the surmise that the deal extends to congress men, and that in exchange for populist votes for Harrison in the electoral col lege, the republicans will allow the peo ple's party men in the house to dictate the organization of that body in the fifty-third congress, should the populists have enough members to hold the be Chariotte has witnessed many public demonstrations of a political nature. In the past they have been great, but the demonstration tonight surpasses all previous efforts and is voted by all a brilliant success. Colonel Ham arrived in the city this morning from Atlanta and a stream of anxious people have poured in his room all day just to get a good look at the "Georgia wonder," as he is known in North Carolina. Extensive preparations had been made to receive the noted Geor-gian. Upon arrival he was immediately taken care of by the committee on recep-tion and was driven to the Central hotel. The long journey and his active work in the late Georgia campaign had almost made him weary, but he was equal in every re-spect for the heavy occasion he accessed. nim weary, but he was equal in every respect for the happy occasion he so gracefully shared the honor of tonight.

At 7:30 o'clock tonight the democracy of North and South Carolina met in one of the grandest torchlight processions ever known in the south. The line of march stretched for three miles, and ten to fifteen thousand entusiastic democrats with transparencies and streaming banners marched to the tune of old "Dixie." At 8:30 o'clock Captain T. R. Roberts, on behalf of the county executive committee called the meeting to order in a few appropriate words and then introduced Mr. E. T. Cansler, one of the most brilliant young orators of North Carolina, who, in a few well-choses words introduced the orator of the day, Colonel Ham, of Georgia.

As Colonel Ham stepped to the front of the large platform he was greeted with round after round of applause. After thanking Mr. Cansler for his beautiful introduction remarks he began one of his side splitting speeches. He kept his audience confused with langhter for two hours and they did not seem the least bit tired when he bid them good night. On the platform with Colonel Ham was that beloved North Carolinian Senator Z. B. Vance. He had come from his mountain home near Ashville to be present at the demonstration tonight though not able to make a speech to his people, whom he has served so faithfully in the past. After Colonel Ham had concluded his speech the vast concourse of people in the building yelled as one man for "Vance! Vance! Just speak one word to us" was the often repeated cry. With an unstendy step and trembling voice, Senator Vance again appeared before an audience of his people. The vast audience went with with enthusiasm. Strong men wept and the tear of sympathy flowed from many an eye. After the audience became quiet Vance spoke in a low and trembling voice. A pin could have been heard to drop in almost any part of the building as he proceeded. Suddenly, as if by inspiration, his voice came back to him and Zeb Vance of old was again heard from the stump. In words of sympathy he pleaded with his countrymen to forsake their wild cat ideas and return to the democratic ship before it was too late. The senator was given such an ovation on taking his seat as only southern people can extend to one in whom their confidence is firmly planted. It was a grand spectacle and one long to be remember ed in the history of this section.

He had conference with Vice President Morton and with Chairman Carter, Clarkson and Manley. After leaving the conference rooms Mr. Quay was asked to give his views of the situation and his opinion as to the result. He said:

of the situation and his opinion as to the result. He said:

"I leave for Philadelphia this morning. I possibly may return, but not necessarily. Coming here on the suggestions of some of the gentiemen engaged in the management of the republican campaign who thought my experience in 1888 might be useful in the solution of two or three pending problems, I have gone very carefully through the details of their labors up to the present time and have canvassed with them their propositions for the future. Their administration has been faultless. Their correspondence satisfies me that the sentiment of the country is favorable to the continuance of republican rule. Harrison will be elected. It is my belief that he will carry the states of New York, Indiana and Connecticut. Existing conditions are such that the electoral vote of New York will elect him without Indiana and Connecticut. Indiana and Connecticut will elect him without New York."

Both of these officers complain bitterly of the state of repair of the lost steamship Roumania. They also complained of the failure of the ship's officers to inform them that the vessel had stranded and of the omission of the crew to aid them in lowering the boats when they steamer was lost.

The Roumania, according to Lieutenant Rooke and Captain Hamilton, was steam-ing at the rate of five knots an hour when she stranded. She struck in the sand sixty she stranged. He was washed ashore with a mass of wreckage. Captain Hamilton says that he was aiding

He sent one lascar morthward, while he himself went southward in search of a house. About 1 o'clock in the afternoon he met a fiscal guard, who returned with him to the scene of the wreck. The Lieutenant was afterward left alone in a niche in the cliff while the guard went to Obdies to inform his superiors. The guard did not return till the following day. In the meantime Lieutenant Rooke, who had been strolling about entirely naked, met Captain Hamilton, who was in the greatest grief. Lieutenant Rooke eventually left him, going in another direction. Captain Hamilton soon met somebody from Penichè, who took him to the hospital.

A cart drawn by oxen appeared at the scene of the wreck Saturday and conveyed Lieutenant Booke and the injured lascars to Peniche, after two days and nights spent in the open air, during which time bands of savages, pillaged the steamer's cargo and carried tons up the hills.

Rome, Ga., November 1.-(Special.)-

Train No. 5 on the East Tennessee road, which passed this place at 8 o'clock last night, was held up and robbed at Piedmont, just over the Alabama line. The robbery was one of the most daring that ever occurred in this section and the Southern Express Company is out about $750. by the transaction. The train was in charge of Conductor Jones and the express car was under the charge of Mes senger Tony Rodgers.

When the train stopped at the water tank just beyond Piedmont Engineer Jones got off his engine for some purpose and walked back to the baggage car. Just as it started to pull out he boarded the express car and asked Messenger Rodgers to open the door and let him pass to his engine. When the door open ed he discovered that he was being followed by two masked men.

Jones rushed on through to his engine where he had a revolver. The men covered Rodgers with revolvers and said:

"Now, sonny, come on with your stuff. They made him hold up his hands and one of them searched his pockets for the safe keys and when he had found them they told him to "open the safe and do it d-d quick." Rodgers obeyed. They then asked him where his gun was. Rodgers told them he had none. "You are a d-d liar," said one of the robbers; "we know you never go without one."

"It's over there in that box," said Rodgers, and one of the rufflans walked over and took the pistol and put it into his pocket. All of this time two pistol muzzles were looking squarely into Rodgers's

"Come on with the stuff," demanded the robbers.

"I've got no money." "You're a liar—come on with that stuff or we'll blow the life out of you." And the pistol muzzles came in painful proximity to Rodgers's head.

He had but two packages. One contained $250 and the other $500, the last had just been given him at Piedmont. Rodgers handed over the $250 package and told them he had no more. Again the robbers cursed him and told him that they knew he had another package. They said they were tired of fooling with him and if that other package was not forthcoming they would open fire at once. Rodgers handed over the $500 package, and the robbers then went for the mail agent. They went through all of the packages, but there was nothing of value

They returned to Rodgers and told him to stop the train. He told them he could not. One of the men pulled the bell cord but the engineer did not stop. They told Rodgers to put on the automatic brake. He told them they could do that as well as he could; and one of them seized the lever and stopped the train. The robbers left the train and ran down the track towards the woods, followed by several shots from Conductor Jones, who by this time had got his Winchester loaded. One of the men fell in the darkness, but got up and ran on. The robbers went to a farmhouse near by and stole a mule and a horse on which they made their escape. The men were well disguised. One was very tall and had on a suit of blue cotton overalls and had a sack pulled over his head with eye holes cut in it and the other man was a low, stout man, in a dark suit, and had the lower part of his face covered by a handkerchief after the style of the James boys. It is believed that they are the same men who held up the train out of East Rome one year ago on the same night. Two suspicious looking individuals were seen prowling around the express office here a day or two ago and at night they attempted to enter the office. It is thought that wey are the same men. The Southern Express Company is making vigorous efforts to capture the robbers.

As the robbers ran out of the bank and jumped into their saddles a party of hunters came along, and learning of the bold robbery, opened fire on them. The robbers returned the fire. About fifteen shots were exchanged, but no one was hurt on either side. The robbers rode south, but were soon overtaken by a mounted posse who had started in pursuit. Another running battle ensued, in which many shots were exchanged, but the robbers managed to escape. It is not known whether any of them were wounded or not.

IN A LAKE OF FLAME.

Horrible Experiences of Three Swimmers— The Damage Done by One Match. Philadelphia, November 1.—The Schuyl-kill river at Point Breeze, is always covered with a thin scum of oil from adjacent oil works, and since the oil fire there Sunday, more than the usual quantity has been floating on the surface. William Miller, Albert Krumback and Warren Hiller, Albert Krunback and Warren Hill, all young men started from the eastern shore at Point Breeze this evening in a rowboat to cross the river. When about 150 feet from the shore, one of the men lighted his pipe and carelessly tossed the blazing stick into the water, As the match fell into the water, a burst of flames shot up alongside the skiff, and almost instantly the surface of the river around the boat was blazing fiercely.

The flames of burning oil licked the gunfiercely.

The flames of burning oil licked the gunwales of the light craft and the men, realizing tat it would be quickly consumed, plunged into the burning fluid around them and started to swim ashore. The fire circle grew larger and spread more rapidly than they could swim and they found that they, were being roasted alive. Hill sank beneath the blasing surface and was seen no more, but his two companions, by repeatedly diving and swimming beneath the sinface, succeeded in reaching the shore. Both men were horribly burned about the shoulders, head, face and wans. They were taken to the hospital, where it is said their condition is critical.

The fire in the meantime had spread down the river and the wrecking steamer Maryland, which was lying in the stream working to raise the burned bark Felix, caught fire, and before she could steam out of the fire, she had been damaged to the extent of $15,000. Streams of water from several engines and tugs finally put the burning oil out. The Maryland is owned by the Red Star line.

Gala Week in Charleston a Success.

Charleston, S. C., November 1.—Peace reigns in Charleston and the gala week goes on. The city is literally buried beneath the folds of the stars and stripes, and its 60,000 inhabitants are busily entertaining thousands of visitors and making themselves happy.

Nothing more alarming occurred in the programme of amusements than an intensely excited and interested game of lacross, by band of civilized Cherokee Indians, from the government reservation in North Carolina. The game was won by Old-Man-Afraid-of-the-Flag amid the plaudits of 10,-

Tonight there was a genuine South Carolina cake walk, in which twenty Afro-Americans of the clite of the state competed. It was witnessed by 15,000 spectators and was a great success.

The United States ships Dolphin and Vesuvius are still anchored in the stream and are visited and admired by thousands of American sovereigns. The blue-jackets and marines, such of them as can get shore leave, are having a jolly time. The officers went into the country today and returned with Velt-soil energy to supply the mess table for the entire crew.

Fort Sumter is still in its old place with its garrison of one veteran, who will never surrender. Neither fort nor flag will be fired upon by the present generation of Charlestonians, who are all solid for the old flag and an appropriation to the garrison at Fort Moultrie.

The pyrotechnic display, which some people think is to dissolve the union, is not scheduled until Thursday hight. The country is apparently all right.

The county taxbooks have been stolen from the tax collector's office.

And they have been stolen in the hope that their disappearance will cover up the illegal registration of third partyltes. It is another evidence of the desperate straits in which Tom Watson and his followers find themselves.

On yesterday notices were served on some 200 voters in this county to show cause on November 5th, before the ordinary, why their names should not be stricken from the registry list and the registry list revised as provided by law. This proceeding was instigated by the

Nominations Made by Democrats and Third

Party People in Carroll. Carrollton, Ga., November 1.—(Special.) The democrats of Carroll county held a Carrollton, Ga., November 1.—(Special.) The democrats of Carroll county held a primary Saturday to nominate county officers. The consolidation of the vote was made today. The following ticket was nominated: Ordinary, S. J. Brown; clerk, J. H. Barron; sheriff, J. M. Hewitt; tax collector, J. M. Muse, tax receiver, J. F. Acklin; surveyor, J. W. Roberson, coroner, Gilbert Cole; county commissioners, E. W. Wells, J. B. Martin, John H. Ward, John W. Brooks, Hamilton Hogan.

Sheriff Jim Hewitt has served Carroll county for sixteen years and in the late primary beat one of the most popular gentlemen of the county 400 votes. There were over 2,200 votes polled Saturday.

The third party met here today and held a mass meeting to nominate county officers with the following result: Ordinary, Dr. William Gaulding; clerk, W. T. Morris; sheriff, W. S. Gonner; tax coil-ctor, J. J. Holloway tax received, W. T. A. Cook, treasurer, T. C. Houston; surveyor, R. W. Bonner; coroner, T. P. Muse: county commissioners, D. R. Martin, S. R. Wynn, John W. H. Russell, George F. Spencer, W. D. Lovern.

The Carroll county commissioners are preparing to build a new courthouse, but the people's party passed resolutions against building and will make that the issue in the campaign. The third party in Carroll county will run justices of the peace and bailiffs in every militia district in the county.

While the third party mass meeting was while the third party has a meeting was going on Jack Turker, third party candidate for congress from the fourth district, came in on the noon train and made a speech for an hour begging his followers to turn out Tuesday and vote for him. Turner's name appears on both the third party and republican tickets sent to this country.

IN TALIAFERRO COUNTY.

It Is Hot There, but Watson Won't Get the Majority He Expects.

Crawfordville. Ga., November 1.—(Special.)—As election day draws near, the adherents of both parties in this part of the tenth are going to work with a will.

The majority of those present were negroes, most of them belonging to that class which seems to regard Watson as an inspired being. He told them that the "wicked democrats" said they were going to control the negro vote by the use of money and whisky. He exhorted them to be honorable men and vote for Tom Watson. Watson's speech was heartily applauded by his followers.

Doyle followed in another speech to the negroes. He could see how a white man could be a democrat. The whites secured all the offices within the gift of the democratic party, but he did not see how the negroes could vote the democratic ticket after learning of the manner in which the democrats cheated him (Doyle). The republican negroes held a meeting in the courthouse Saturday. White, an Augusta negro, addressed them bidding them to stick by the republican party. He was several times interrupted by some of the Watson negroes, and threatened to show up their "little tin-top Tom Watson" if they didn't keep quiet. William Gaines, a third party negro worker, also made a speech. The meeting endorsed the republican national ticket, and adjourned until next Saturday.

Mr. Comer said that the question was simply a business proposition. The Central railroad is enabled said that the question was simply a business proposition. The Central railroad is enabled at its own press to compress cotton in Macon for something less than 20 cents per bale, while the charge at the other presses would be 50 cents. The handling and reloading of the cotton, which would be 10 cents more. It is a difference between 60 cents and 20 cents. That's all there is in it. Referring to the paragraph insinuation meaning personal considerations to Mr. Comer, he simply said: "The man who insinuated such a thing would probably be influenced by just such considerations as he ascribed to me." Mr. Comer stated that he has ordered three engines and seven hundred freight cars. The cars will begin to arrive by the middle of November and the contract will be filled by January.

THE LADIES' GARDEN CLUB.

Athens, Ga., November 1.—(Special.)—The grand autumn exhibition of the Ladies' Garden Club of Athens opened today in the Young Men's Christian Association

Fresh, fragrant flov ers, bouyant with the vigor imparted by rich soil and high cultivation, displayed in great rows, banks, arches and every other conceivable design form a picture of which nature and art combined have ever pre-

The Shut-Down of the Rome Mills and the Attitude of the Employes.

Rome, Ga., November 1.—(Special.)—Its feared that the hands who have been thrown out of employment by the passage of the Rome rolling mill into the hands of a receiver are going to cause trouble. There are over one hundred of these men and they came into the city this morning and collected around Mr. King's bank and insisted that their money should be paid. They dispersed finally and held a meeting in their hall and employed Mr. Harper Hamilton to take steps to get their money. The men are mostly Irish and German and it is feared that they might as to extracted. that he ought to pay them. There are over that they might go to extremes. THE PETITION QUASHED.

Judge Bruce Rendered His Decision in the

udge Bruce, of the United States district court today sustained a motion to quash the petiton for writ and mandamus to compel the the probate judges, sheriffs and circuit cierks of Bullock and Macon counties to appoint third party representatives among the manag-ers or inspectors of the election next Tues-ers or inspectors of the election next Tuesday.

Julge Bruce granted the motion to quash on the ground that the court did not have authority to issue an original writ of mandamus, and there being no proceedings to give him jurisdiction. In delivering his opinion the court intmated strongly that the state laws governing national elections be came federal laws in accordance with an opinion by Judge Harlan, cited by counsel for prosecution and that the officers, whose duty it was to execute them, became to the same extent federal officers are amendable to the federal court. He said further that he could not anticipate that the officers proposed to commit frauds, adding that if they did not obey the state laws as regards the approaching election they would be responsible for such failure to perform their duties and that their responsibility could be determined in the United States court.

"I AM NOT A BIGAMIST," Says Munch Wheeles, but He Thinks They Will Try to Hang Him.

Will Try to Hang Him.

Lexington, Ga., November 1.— (Special.)— For good reasons Sheriff Winn has deemed;
it prudent to place a night watch in the jail with Munch Wheeles, he and Deputy Sheriff Maxwell taking it upon alternate nights.
They do not keep "wakeful vigilance," but sleep in the outer hall adjacent to where the prisoner is kept. This watch will be kept up until court convenes.

A reporter visited Munch Wheeles in the jail Wednesday evening, having been invited to do so by him. He found the prisoner quite low spirited, and when told that he had come to get anything he might want to say in his behalf he replied that he "didn't reckon it would be worth whilefor him to say anything as everybody was so down on him they wouldn't believe it noway."

All efforts to draw him out as to his

so down on him they wouldn't believe it noway."

All efforts to draw him out as to his crimes and career were without avail, except as to the charge of being wanted for bigamy in South Carolina. He said that since this accusation had been proven unfounded when first made he did not think it just that it should be brought up again to prejudice the people more against him. He declared the charge utterly false and said that whatever else might be charged up to him he was not guilty of anything like bigamy anywhere. The only direct mention he made of the last charge against him, of having stolen a mule, was that "that will have to be proven yet."

Once he mentioned the most serious charge against him in this county—that of murder for which he stands indicted—and said he "reckoued he would be tried for that first and that they will try and hang me for that, and if they do that will settle the mule case." With this he laughed a little.

All through his conversation his despon-the mule case." With this he haughed a little.

All through his conversation his despondency was evident. Several times he spoke as though he courted death that he might get out of his troubles, and many times he spoke of how everybody seemed to be against him and so anxious to destroy him. His greatest concern was for his parents and family and he spoke of them tenderly. He seemed to regret more the disgrace to them than to himself.

He said he had thought of making a statement for the public, but that he did not think it would do any good now; that he might make it later and hoped to be able to clear himself in the minds of the people of many of the charges made against him. He does not look the hardened criminal that his record as the public have it would paint him. He is of slight but muscular build, has a rather open countenance and when talking to any one looks them squarely in the face. He talks fluently, but it can be plainly seen that he weighs his words well before he utters them.

As he says he will probably be tried first upon the indictment against him for murder at the December term of the court. If he comes clear of that, which is not improbable, he will be put upon trial for the lesser crimes with which he is accused. There are several of these and he will probably have a hard time proving himself innocent of some of these, if indeed he can do so at all.

He has not employed counsel as yet, but

He has not employed counsel as yet, but said he thought his family would engage Messrs. H. T. Lewis, of Greenesboro, and H. C. Tuck, of Athens, to defend him. This will be a strong than will be a strong team.

Finance in Texas.

From The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

John Allen, of Mississippi, tells the story of an elegant southern gentleman, unused to the ways of the world, who came to him one day and with profuse apologies that he knew nothing about such matters, and with some grammering school. "Ab Mr. he knew nothing about such matters, and with some stammering asked: "Ah, Mr. Allen, can you tell me how a gentleman should go about getting a little loan—a few hundred dollars say—from the bank?" "Certainly, colonel," said Mr. Allen "I am only too happy to be at your service. It is quite an easy matter. All you have to do is to go to the bank and sign a note and give your collateral. The bank hands the money over to you."

The old gentleman thanked Mr. Allen most earnestly. He said he understood it now perfectly, and felt much ashamed that he should be so ignorant in business affairs. He went away.

He went away.

"About half an hour afterwards I met

THE PEOPLE HAPPY AND SMILING

Today Is Atlants Day and a Large Orowd Will Be on Hand to Welcome the Governor.

Macon, Ga., November 1 .- (Special.)-Macon was determined not to be behind in the attendance on the day set apart as more particularly hers to show her appreciation of the state fair.

This has been by far the biggest day in point of attendance and every one is satisfied from the fakir up; or, it might be more proper to say, from the fakir down—for this class of settler is by far the biggest gainer by the fair—as far as good cash money is concerned. But today every one is happy and the grounds are as lively as ever they have been seen at any state fair. Tomorrow being Atlanta's day will, of course, bring in a crowd from that city and among the number who have written to say they will be present is Governor Northen and his staff with the state house officials. Those who will be here at 11 o'clock tomorrow are:

Governor W. J. Northen and Hon's. R. U Hardeman, R. T. Nesbit, J. McIntosh Kell, D. W. O'Daniel, Lieutenant C. B. Satterlee, W. H. Joyner, W. A. Wright, Philip Cook, John Milledge, R. T. Wright, R. C. Irwin and C. T. Furlow. The governor will be well received and very welcome in Macon, where he has been associated with former fairs as president of the state agricultural society.

This afternoon all the business houses were closed, banks and all and the clerks employers and all manner of men are on the grounds at the park. The racing to-day was particularly interesting as the track was in magnificent condition and every one was hungry for some more

How Women Dress in India.

From The New Orleans Picayune.

According to a recent writer who has been there, the native women of India seem to array themselves mostly in jewelry and modesty. He says: "The Indian lady is loaded down with silver and gold jewelry and precious stones. Her earns have many rings in them, some so large that they reach her shoulders. Next comes the nose, with rings large enough for a bracelet. Occasionally the lips are also ornamented. Then she rings large enough for a bracelet. Occasionally the lips are also ornamented. Then she has several necklaces of costly pearls, armlets, wristlets and anklets and innumerable rings on most of her fingers and toes, including the thumbs and great toes. An Indian lady's jewelry was weighed on one occasion and it was found to turn the scales at thirty-five pounds. The conventional dress for ladles consists casion and it was found to turn the scales at thirty-five pounds. The conventional dress for ladles consists of a piece of silk or gorgeously colored cotton about five yards long and a half a yard wide. This is wrapped about the body in the following way: One end is circled around the waist once or twice, then the remainder is thrown over the left shoulder, leaving the right breast both arms and legs bare. The cloth reaches nearly to her knees. It may thus be seen that she is well dressed for the purpose of displaying her ornaments and comfortably dressed for the climate."

sale pardoning of criminals in the United States.

This infamous Neill, who is a Canadian at one time lived in Chicago, and was convicted of the murder of a woman there and was sentenced to the state's prison for life. The governor of Illinois, however, was induced to set him free and the atrocious villain was able to go to London, where he added six to the terrible score of his murderous crimes. Fortunately for the good of society, the verdicts of juries and the judgments of courts are fully respected in England, and are never interfered with except for the most obvious and convincing reasons. Perhaps one reason for not disturbing these decrees is that public officials are not driven to such devices to gair votes and secure the political support of the criminal classes. At any rate, a person once convicted of crime in Merry England has a hard time of getting out of the clutches of the law.

The Lines Belonging to the Metropolitan Trying to Street Railway Company.

MR. H. M. ATKINSON THE PURCHASER

He Pays $121,000 for the Property-Mr. Arnold Broyles Has Made an Excellent Receiver.

The Metropolitan street car lines, to-gether with the real and other property belonging to the company, and which for the past few months have been under the supervision and control of Receiver Broyles

Permission to sell the property was obtained by the receiver several weeks ago from his honor, Judge Marshall Clarke, and the first of November was fixed as the time for the sale to occur.

A large crowd of spectators and mer-chants generally who had in mind the date appointed for the sale, assembled in front of the courthouse yesterday morning.

Bankers representing themselves only and lawyers who were there to bid for their clients and real estate men to see what the property was going to bring—these and many others made up the "motley crowd" that stood around the auctioneer and that every now and then chimed in with a bid or two for the property.

The sale was conducted by the receiver,

Mr. Arnold Broyles.
Mr. R. J. Lowry broke the ice with $50,-

He was followed by Judge James A.
Anderson who towered above the surging mass like a veritable Saul and cried out with a lusty voice that seemed to resemble a cyclone.

"I'll make it $51,000 said the judge and with that he leveled his eye upon Captain

For several minutes the battle between Captain Lowry and the "tall sycamore of the Wabash" continued to amuse the

When it came Judge Anderson's time to bid he would add a few dollars to the bid of Captain Lowry determined if he got the property to pay for it only a slight advance pon the figures of the handsome banker. Captain Lowry, however, was not such a "hair splitter" as the judge and when the latter had cried out his bid he responded by adding a cool thousand to the figures of adding a cool thousand to the ngures of the judge.

When Captain Lowry with a smile on his face that only a yard stick could measure had leaped over the hundred thousand dollar ditch and sang out $102,000 Judge Anderson decided to "beat a retreat" and to marshal his figures for a later plunge in the game.

Just then Mr. H. M. Atkinson who had been quietly waiting for the "cut to jump".

sust then air. H. M. Atkinson who had been quietly waiting for the "cat to jump" sang out "$103,000," and immediately all eyes were turned upon the new county. The contest between the new champion and Captain Lowry was then kept up at a lively tune until figures ran up to $120,000.

Judge Anderson who had been in consultation with Judge E. B. Rosser and Mr. B. T. Wilson, then stepped to the front again and sang out tacking on an expa hundred dollars to the bid of Mr. Atkinson.

again and sang out tacking on an expa hundred dollars to the bid of Mr. Atkinson. It was the "song of the dying swan" however and as soon as Mr. Atkinson chimed out $121,000 the judge lifted his eyebrows and gave up the ghost.

There was no further bid and after the usual dramatic flourishes by the auctioneer the property was declared to be the purchase of Mr. Atkinson.

Mr. Atkinson refused to divulge the names of the parties he represented and only stated that he bought the property for capitalists who live in Boston.

Nothing could be learned as to the future of the road in the hands of its new owners. It is very likely, however, that steps will be taken immediately looking towards a better equipment and a further extension of the lines.

Mr. Broyles deserves to be congratulated for the excellent manner in which he has

The property sold yesterday morning em-braces the Clark university line, the Grant park line, the Soldiers' home line, the Pulliam street line, and certain real estate belonging to the company.

Grand Prospects Ahead—Go and See the Display.

The Nantahala stockholders are happy with the best and richest property of its kind in the world: a large balance in the treasury; not a dollars indebtedness; work progressing steadily, and the best and most successful bankers and business men of the country, adding to their treasury all the time by subscribing for their stock, and many of the wealthiest and most refined men and women of the country arranging to build beautiful homes in that elevated region. All this and more too is enough to make them feel tip top, outside of the money to be made by investing in Nantahala, and that it is one of the safest and most profitable investments ever offer d in this country, is conceded by everybody w¹ o knows anything about it. It is an honor and a pleasure to work with the men and women who are developing Nantahala.

The display of beautiful marble at the company's office is drawing large and entansiastic crowds every day. The fortunes that have been made in so many places, on very small investments, are almost sure to be duplicated by a great many at Nantahala. A $200 investment, paid in easy installments, while it is safe as any bank in the country, may pay back the investor ten for one in a very short time.

We unhesitatingly say that there is not such a chance for safe and profitable investment on the American market today.

THRIVING CORDELE

The New Female College—Many Other Evidences of Thrift.

Cordele, Ga., November 1.—(Special.)—A new era of prosperity has set in for Cordele. The financial stringency has, perhaps, affected the city's growth to some extent, but, considering the number of new enterprises which had to be nursed, all of which have gone through the stringency without financial embarrassment, there is great cause for congratulating the plucky wiregrass city.

Mr. Fountain, the contractor, now promises to have the lower floor of the Freddle Shipp Female college ready for occupancy by January 1, 1893. Already over one hundred applications have been received for admission to the college. This college will be an ornament to south Georgia. The Baptists are determined to make it one of the very best female colleges in the south.

Truck farming will be engaged in extensively around Cordele another year. The Cordele Dairy and Poultry Company will increase their output and a great many farmers who have found cotton unprofitable are preparing to raise watermelons, potatoes, vegetables, tobacco, sugarcane, hogs, chickens, butter, eggs and hundreds of other money-making things. South Georgia will be the garden spot of the south in five more years. Her soil yields abudantly of almost every product. Already the tide of emigration has begun its censeless flow to this section. Almost every day brings men to Cordele who wish to settle near here on farms. They come from everywhere and as they find the lands much more fertile than they imagined before they came, they almost invariably purchase farms and become citizens of Dooly. Verily, this is a grand country and its future glory no man can foretell.

Reformatory

THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE MET

And After Consulting with Friends De oided to Go Before the County Commission-A Joint Meeting Today.

Atlanta's chances for a reformatory are beginning to look very bright.

Mr. Meador and his associates, Messrs.
Stephens and McWaters, of the special committee appointed by Mayor Hemphill, have been wegking quietly but industriously for the school.

And they are all well pleased with the progress they have made. The members of the committee met ve terday in the mayor's office surrounded by quite a number of Atlanta's most influentia itizens, who had been invited to take part in the initial work of providing a way ecure the reformatory. Every one advocated the home, but no one could suggest a better plan than that outlined by Chairman Meador. All, like Mr. Meador, thought the county should be called upon to do the big end of the work if not to actually build the school. So unanimous was this belief that a resolution was dopted providing for a conference between adopted providing for a conference between the county commission and the special com-mittee from the council, accompanied by a delegation of representative Atlantians. Immediately after the meeting adjourned Mr. Meador sought an audience with the members of the county commission and ar-ranged for a joint session this morning at 11 o'clock. During that session the com-mission will be urged to take the subject mission will be urged to take the subject up and carry it through. "We are more than pleased with the progress we have made," said Mr. Meador yesterday, "and this morning I think the work will take definite shape."

"How much will it cost?" he was asked. "We have not begun to count the cost yet," he replied. "We want to arouse an terest in the work and pave a way the start. The members of the county commission are all deeply interested in the plan and I feel sure we will have their most hearty co-operation. By building the home the county would not only reform hard cases but would save money.

hard cases but would save money."

"How so?"

"If the boy isn't reformed after he gets a start, he gradually goes to the chaingang and there the county supports him. It's only a choice between supporting him in a reformatory or in a convict camp."

Probably the best qualified judge in Atlanta as to the necessity of a reformatory is Hon. Andy Calhoun, judge of the police court. Every day in the year he has wayward boys to deal with and the greatest problem he has had since he went upon the bench was the best way to dispose of the juvenile offender. Having seen the results of punishment the judge's views are worth careful consideration.

sults of punishment the judge's views are worth careful consideration.
"Nothing the public could do," said the judge when approached yesterday, "would be more beneficial than to build such a home as these gentlemen are discussing. Not only that better men might be made of these homeless boys but for the public good. "Since being recorder I have watched the course of some of the young criminals and know that their downward career commenced with little acts, almost insignificant, but each time they were brought up before me the crimes grew larger until some of them are working out were brought up before me the crimes grew larger until some of them are working out terms in the penitentiary—maybe their first offense was that of loitering or sleeping out at nights.

"When they are sent to the stockade they learn nothing but how to be criminals and escape punishment. I never send them there when there is any possible way to avoid it. With such a school in existence as the public has in view, most of these boys could be trained into industrious men. If the county could give these boys a rudimentary education, make them work sufficient to raise their own provisions and then learn them some particular trade, for which they seem to be severally adopted, I am satisfied that Fulton, in the coming years, would have less burglars and cut throats. If a young boy is placed at such a school, carefully trained and kept there until twenty-one years of age and then given some lucrative employment I do not see how he can afterwards be a criminal."

A Judge Rents Him Out for One 'Possum

a Week.

Lumpkin, Ga., October 24.—(Special.)—A lawsuit involving the ownership of a dog came up before Judge Everett a few days since. The circumstances were about thus:

up before Judge Everett a few days since. The circumstances were about thus:

Fox Essex, a negro living near Louvale, had failed to pay his tax last year, and an execution was issued against him by Tax Collector Ard. This fi. fa. was turned over for collection to Balliff John Tatum, who has a keen eye for business. When the balliff went to levy on some effects of Fox's out of which he could make the tax money, he found nothing in the way of property upon which he could lay his hand. But Fox had a fine 'possum dog, and Tatum knew it; so the balliff tied a string around the canine's neck and carried it home. Out of his own pocket he paid the amount of the tax execution and kept the dog.

Now Fox made no complaint about the loss of his faithful dog until he began to reflect a few days ago that meat was high and very scarce at his house, and that "possums and taters" were ripe. He remembered how he was wont to hie to the woods with his dog and bring home the grinning and clean tailed rodent, and how next day he would bake that 'possum and garnish him with sweet potatoes. Reflecting thus his mouth began to water and his feet to travel toward Lümpkin, where he swore out a possessory warrant for the dog in question.

Bailiff Frank Kirksey, armed with the warrant, went out and brought in the dog Wednesday.

The case was called for trial Thursday, but rant, went out and brought in the dog wednesday.

The case was called for trial Thursday, but Fox decided that it would be better to let the case go no further, so he paid the costs and departed without the dog, and Balliff Tatum did likewise, for the famous 'possum dog became the property of Judge Harrison as a lawyer's fee. The judge has rented the dog out at a 'possum a week.

In more than one sense this is a dog-gone sort of a case.

A New Cotton Picker.

Montgomery, Ala., October 31.—(Special.)—
A successful test was made today of M. C. Scott's suburban plantation by the Southern Cotton Harvesting company with their recently discovered and aiready much improvement cotton picking. A simple contrivance on four wheels pulled by mules, eight feet long, three feet wide, and with eight brushes, wires and fierible tin gatherers, in less than ten minutes, 200 pounds were picked and deposited in the bags, the machine continuing in that manner from furrow to furrow satisfying many farmers and business men present that this machine will work a revolution in picking cotton.

The company had among its representatives on the spot Messrs. Leon, and Isaac Blum, and M. Mara, all capitalists of Galveston, Tex., the Pratts of Prattville, and many other prominent men from different parts of the county.

DUST TO DUST.

Funeral of the Late Renden Jones Yesterday Afternoon.

WITH MASONIC "HONORS, BURIED

It Was Decided That He Should Bepose in Atlanta and His Ashes Were Therefore Interred in Oakland Cemetery.

The last sad rites over everything that was mortal of Senator Ruben F. Jones were performed in the First Methodist church yesterday afternoon.

A more impressive ceremony was never witnessed in Atlanta, and the tender words of enlogy that were uttered over the casket, which was completely hidden beneath a mound of flowers, caused many sad tears to well from the hearts of the congrega-

Never was a death surrounded by more unusual circumstances. Just entered upon his duties as the honored senator of his important district, the oath of office still fresh on his lips as he pledged to uphold the dignity and honor of the commonwealth, and more than that, with his wife on her way to meet him and to spend the happy weeks with her distinguished husband at his post of duty—and then to fall, without a word of premonition, along the highway leading to the capitol.

But no man according to the testimony of his presiding elder who spoke at his funeral yesterday, was more prepared to obey the summons. He was a devoted and humbel Christian, and for more than forty years was a faithful servant of the chur A warmer neart never beat in a mortal bosom and a gentler spirit was never housed in a human sanctuary. Senator Jones was a Mason in high official position, and a deputation of that order acted as the regular pallbe while a grand procession of Masons under the leadership of the grand master, Mr. John S. Davidson, of Augusta, filed into the church immediately behind the casket. Seats in the church were reserved for the members of the general assembly and also for the members of the Masonic fra-ternity.

The Masons occupied the seats to the right of the pulpit running back to the rear of the church, while the members of the house and senate sat in the middle of the building and just behind the family.

The casket before it was brought into the sanctuary had rested in the parlor of Dr. Chan Jones, a brother of Senator Jones, at 500 Peachtree street, and there during the morning many of his old friends and co-laborers called to take a last view of the features which they loved in life.

and co-laborers called to take a last view of the features which they loved in life. The funeral cortege left the residence promptly at 3 o'clock, and arrived at the door of the church at 3:30 o'clock.

The procession on entering the church was headed by the pastor, Dr. J. B. Robins, who read the impressive burial service, Dr. J. W. Lee, of the Park Street methodist church and his late presiding elder.

A beautiful selection by the choir was then rendered, and a fervent prayer was offered by Dr. Lee. He prayed for the blessings of heaven to rest upon the bereaved widow and the other disconsolate members of the family who mourned the death of their beloved relative. He prayed especially for the invalid mother who was lying upon her bed of death and who would soon meet him within the sapphire gates. The members of the Masonic fraternity and of the general assembly were also remembered by the beautiful prayer of invocation.

Senator Jones's presiding elder then stepped to the front and in beautiful words spoke of his Christian life and character. He never knew a gentler man or a more

He referred to his long connection with the church and to their ardent friendship which was ripened with co-operation in the blessed cause of their Redeemer.

Dr. Lee also added his tribute to the worth of the dead senator and spoke of the fact that although his death was startling in its unexpected summons, it found him ready and willing to obey the call.

The procession after the final hymn by the choir, then slowly moved towards the cemetery where the senator after the beautiful manner of the brotherhood to which he belonged was buried with Masonic honors.

THE OLD LOG CABIN.

Which Recalls a Great Whig Mass Meeting in Lumpkin, Ga., October 31.—(Special.)—Boyd, in "Men and Issues of '92," referred to the whig log cabin and hard cider of the campaign of 1840, but omitted the gourd vine, which was a prominent feature of the campaign, winding itself around the log cabin. The most magnificent log cabin of the campaign in this section was built by the cabin. The most magnificent log cabin of the campaign in this section was built by the whigs of Marion county. It was built on wheels and pulled to Lumpkin by a team of eight fine horses, heavily laden with hard cider and decorated with gourd vines. It was on the occasion of a great whig mass meeting in Lumpkin, and when the whigs of Marion county arrived with their cabin many and loud were the hurrahs that went up for Tyler and Tippecanoe." Among the speakers we remember Jonathan Davis, Lott Warren and Julius C. Alfred. The hard cider was as free as branch water, and had no tendency whatever to modify enthusiasm. The most popular campaign song was sung to the tune of "Old Rosin the Bow."

A needy woman—the one who's overworked, nervous, and debilitated. What she needs is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's made exactly to fit her case—an invigorating, restorative tonic, and ening nervine, giv-

a soothing and strengthening nervine, giving tone and vigor to the whole system. But it isn't a mere stimulant. It's a legitimate medicine, that an experienced physician has carefully prepared, for woman's aliments. All the functional derangements, chronic weaknesses, and painful disorders peculiar to the sex, are corrected and cured by it.

And because it's a certain remedy, it can be made a guaranteed one. If it fails to give satisfaction, in any case, you have your money back. You pay only for the good you get.

The best pill costs less than any other. Costs less, but does more. They're smaller, too, and easier to take. Dr. Pierce's Pleasunt Pelleta are the best pills. They regulate perfectly the liver, stomach, and bowels.

ATLANTA, GA., November 2, 1892. ELECTION FOR PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS F CONGRES TUESDAY, NOVEMPER STH.

The Bosses at Work.

The seeds of dissolution that were sown In the third party at its inception continue to sprout and blossom and bear fruit. The fact has ceased to attract attention, but some of the developments that accompany these manifestations of early decay are worthy of a passing notice.

In the ninth congressional district Congressman Winn was the regular nominee of the third party. There was some squabble over the result, but it was generally conceded by those acquainted with the facts that he received the nomination fairly and squarely and was entitled to be regarded as the candidate of his party.

But there seems to be a power in the third party that is higher and more important than the wishes or desires of the third party voters. This power seems to be exercised by a sort of close corporation-a grand panjandrum-and it was put forth in this case to compel Winn to withdraw in favor of his defeated competitor, Thad Pickett. The panjandrum was successful. Winn was pushed out of the way and Pickett is now the candidate.

The same tactics have just been successfully employed in the fifth district. When the third party met some time ago to make a nomination the names of two candidates were before it-those of Mr. Taliaferro and Rev. Sam Small. Mr. Small, to all appearances, was not in the race, and Mr. Tallaferro received the nomination without any trouble. He was entirely satisfactory to the third party convention and to the third party voters, but it seems that the panjandrum had different notions. There has been a little backroom caucus, and Mr. Taliaferro, on the eve of election, has been compelled to withdraw in favor of the competitor whom de defeated in the convention.

This will strike most people as a very queer proceeding, coming as it does on the eve of the election. It is an attack not only on Mr. Taliaferro, but on his friends. What are the charges against him? So far as we know, none have been preferred. He is simply the victim of a little clique which has arrogated to itself the power of the third party voters of this district. They have undone the work which the representatives of the third party voters did in the convention, didate who was defeated and therefore repudiated by the convention.

Mr. Taliaferro now says that he will support Livingston, and this course is dictated by his self-respect. His friends should follow his example. It is not a question, now, of the third party. It is a question whether the voters who sympathized with the third party movement shall have manhood and independence enough to repudiate the action of the clique which has set aside their will and their candidate.

Thrift in New Hampshire.

Georgia has few savings banks, comparatively speaking, but undoubtedly the state has as many as there is a demand for. The absence of these institution does not mean that there is a like absence of the saving instinct that goes with genuine thrift, but the fact that such will be the interpretation of those who study such matters is calculated to do the state injustice.

There are hundreds of small depositors in our regular banks and the number of these is growing rapidly. Especially is this the case in Atlanta, where the spirit of thrift and saving is as pronounced as it is anywhere. Nevertheless, it is not to be denied that this spirit could be improved on all over the state.

The savings bank returns of New Hampshire show what can be done in this direction. There are seventy-one savings banks in that state, and these institutions have more than $74,000,000 on deposit, an increase of more than $3,000,-000 in the nine months preceding June 30th. The most remarkable showing made by the returns is that the average amount of each deposit is $426.24, the $74,000,000 being divided among 170,000

Threatening Colored Voters. The colored voters of Screven county are being intimidated in a rather novel manner. In the recent state election a great number of colored men voted the nocratic ticket, and The Savannah News has information to the effect that they will vote for the democratic candidate for congress at the approaching elec-

The fear that they will do so has led to the sending of threatening letters from anonymous sources to these colored voters, the purpose of the letters being to frighten them out of voting the democratic congressional ticket,

So far, all effort to discover the authorship of these letters has falled, but now that the democratic campaign committee has taken the matter in hand, there is some hope of bringing the miscreants to justice. The leading colored republicans of the county deny all knowledge of the letters, and it is now rumored that they can be traced to certain members of the third party.

This blind effort to intimidate colored voters will fail of its intended effect. The democrats are on the ground to give them all the protection they need, and they will see to it that they are not intimidated on the day of the election.

This Screven county scheme is the last resort of desperate men who are struggling to redeem what is practically a lost cause." It will doubtless be practiced in other counties in the state, and it is well for the colored voters to be on their guard and to resent by their free ballots any interference with their rights, whether it comes from the third or repub-

"Line Upon Line."

The Springfield Republican in discussing the economic value of manual training scores a point which, for another purpose, we desire to call the attention of our readers to. "For example," says The Republican, "the million tons of cotton which we exported to Europe during the fiscal year of 1888 had its value enhanced fully twenty times by the treatment of European workmen. For one million tons of cotton we received $220,000,000. For the fraction, insignificant in bulk, that we bought back again, we paid $40,000,000.

Let our readers apply the same reasoning to the south. We export, either to the north or to Europe, the great bulk of the cotton crop. The amount that we manufacture into yarns and fabrics is really insignificant. New England and Europe do our spinning for us, and we buy our own cotton back without a thought of the fact that we are really throwing away millions of dollars yearly. We do not even make an effort to spin our cotton into yarn, which would about treble its value. We do not, except in a very feeble way, strive to seize and utilize the advantages that are naturally ours. We seem to be waiting for the skies to fall in order to catch our larks. Therefore we desire to repeat here what we have said so often before that the south will never be as prosperous as it ought to be until it spins and weaves the cotton that is growing on its soil.

A Contemporary Answered. The esteemed Americus Times-Recorder, commenting on the home for friendless girls which Mrs. Wolfe is endeavoring to establish in Atlanta, says: A noble woman, Mrs. Wolfe, is trying testablish in the capital of Georgia a home for friendless and outcast girls, who need helping hand to save them from lives of in-famy. Of the character of her work, the philanthropy of her design, and the great good to be accomplished, there seems to no question. No suspicion of crookedness hes to the lady in charge of this move ment, nor does any one appear to suspect that her design is not to be carried out in good faith and with perfect propriety and

It is not charged that Mrs. Wolfe's hor to be anything but what it purports to be, a home for the saving of the fallen and friendless girls who have just started on the downward road to ruin and of whom there still hope. Yet with unutterable meanness, with depth of infamous cussedness that would disgrace Hottentot civilization, a number of the citizens of Atlanta are doing all the can to drive this lady out of the city and de feat her efforts to save the fallen.

The Times-Recorder is generally on the side of right, and against wrong: but when it calls the local opposition to Mrs. Wolfe's noble charity "Atlanta's disgrace," it does the great majority of the people of this city an injustice which, however, is pardonable, since it appears that The Times-Recorder is not thorough ly acquainted with the facts in the case.

The opposition to this home has been solely of a local character-confined to the immediate neighborhood in which the home is located; the parties opposing it have their own reasons for so doing, and are doubtless honest enough in their views regarding it; but they do not represent the sentiment of Atlanta, taken as a whole, and we believe this has been fully demonstrated.

The Constitution has done what it could to uphold Mrs. Wolfe in this good work; it has given the home all the aid in its power; its object is a worthy one, and as such we have advocated its claims to pub-lie sentiment and sympathy. The people of Atlanta stand ready at all times to assist in the most practical manner all charitable enterprises; they have proved this in the past; therefore, the opposition of Mrs. Wolfe's neighbors to the institution she has in hand cannot be called "a disgrace to Atlanta," as a city. As we have said before, we think Mrs Wolfe's object is a worthy one, and the good will of the people of Atlanta, with the single exception referred to, is largely with her in the work,

Still in Trouble.

Among the able editors of the country there is none who gets deeper into trouble and stays there longer than our friend Halstead, who does his editing from the summit of Brooklyn bridge. Awhile ago, Editor Halstead was rushing wildly around in the flatwoods and the underbrush, making a vain attempt to escape from the republican force bill. It was a wild but futile escapade. Whether the Davenport measure overtook and overpowered him in the bushes, or whether his fright was a mere freak of the nerves, it is impossible to say; but the Davenport bill is still the leading issue of the campaign and will remain so to the end.

It is a curious fact that when Editor Halstead disappeared in the bushes he was running from the force bill, but when he emerged he was fleeing for dear life from the plank in the democratic platform which demands the repeal of the 10 per cent tax on state banks. And his fright s not unmixed with indignation. It is, in fact, an insult to editorial dignity that a man whose stomach is beginning to protrude, should be run into the woods by one of his own party issues and chased out again by a democratic plan to "denationalize" the currency. So far as this particular plank is concerned, the actions of Editor Halstead are such as to lead the spectators to believe that he has been overtaken and paddled with it.

The result is, he sees nothing but hor-rible visions of financial chaos, wild cats and red dogs. He perceives in the scheme "a prodigy of devilment," and his alarm ends in wild cries to the blue and startled empyrean.

Well, when Editor Halstead is stretch ed on the rack of rhetoric, we know we know that matters are moving smooth ly to a predestined end. He is in truth and indeed the stormy petrel of the G. O. P., and the campaign would be deprived of its most attractive and spectacular feature if Editor Halstead were not fluttering and shricking over the shoals on which the republican hulk is drifting.

The Contest in the Northern Circuit The general assembly began yesterday morning the work of electing judges and solicitors general in the circuits where the terms of office of the present incumbents are about to expire. There was but one contest yesterday, and that was for the position of solicitor general of the North-ern circuit, now held by the Hon. William M. Howard, of Oglethorpe. Mr. Howard was re-elected by a vote of 113 to 93 over Hon. Robert H. Lewis, of Hancock.

The legislature, in re-electing Mr. How ard, retains in the service of the state one of the best solicitors Georgia ever had. But to re-elect Mr. Howard was to defeat one of the most energetic, gifted and popular young lawyers in the state-Bob Lewis, of Hancock. The defeat of either of these two well-known young Georgians could not possibly be urged to the injury of the other. Mr. Howard, in being re-elected has the satisfaction of having his able administration endorsed, and begins his third term under the most flattering auspices. Mr. Lewis, after his brilliant campaign test, has the satisfaction of knowing that he made a magnificent race, pushed his competitor closely, and ended the contest with more friends than ever.

The state will yet honor Bob Lewis, and The Constitution takes pleasure, by way of paying tribute to his well-known ability and to his combined merit of head and heart, in saving that there is no office in the gift of the state too good for him.

Ingersoll in Chicago.

The Chicago Times devotes a column to a lecture delivered in that city by Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll, on Sunday evening last. The lecture, viewed from Mr. Ingersoll's standpoint, was an interesting one: it must have been such, since we are informed that it kept 2,500 people applauding for nearly two hours. The orator wittily told his auditors that, having attended church that morning, they had sought his lecture "as an antidote," whereat there was great applause.

Mr. Ingersoll's lecture on this particular occasion was a new one called "Myths and Miracles:" but it was the same old tirade against religion—the religion of Christianity-in a different form-the same superficial skimming of the subject -the same substitution of raillery and stale witticism for argument.

It is not so much the fact that Mr. Ingersoll said nothing new in this avowedly "new" lecture which prompts us to call attention to it, as the somewhat surprising statement that he had, for the most part, a Christian audience, who applauded him to the echo, and that he dwelt on that fact with great glee. Christianity in Chicago, on Sunday evenings, varies slightly from Christianity where.

But our attention is directed to one other point in Mr. Ingersoll's lecture: After he had consigned mankind and religion to nothingness hereafter, he came very near turning the meeting into an oldfashioned Methodist love feast by shouting: "Let us all go to heaven, hand in

We do not doubt but that when the learned lecturer made that proposition some good old brother in the amen corner groaned "amen!" But the wonder is that some one of the good ministers of Chicago did not take the orator at his word and change the complexion of the meeting. He certainly gave them a splendid opportunity.

It frequently harmens that Mr. Ingersoll finds himself talking about heaven with as much faith as a Christian. In the excitement incident to his flights of oratory he forgets the part he is playing, and becomes, for the moment, a shouting Methodist. There is hope of Bob yet!

A New Motor.

The storage battery street car is com ing along, and it will be running in Atlanta shortly after it is perfected. Meanwhile, Mr. J. W. Harris, of Baltimore, has invented the "Harris motor wagon," and will soon be operating it in the streets of Washington for exhibition.

In this vehicle, gasoline is the motor, and it is said to do the work with neatness and dispatch. The wagon is intended to be used as a conveyance for passengers and freight, taking the place of the omnibuses and transfer wagons in the larger cities.

The largest wagons can be run for $1 a day, which is the essence of cheapness. On paved streets the speed is from ten to twelve miles an hour. After awhile we shall have the gasoline buggy, and the electric dog cart, and then everybody can take an airing by putting a nickel in the slot.

It is a great age we are living in. Will John Sherman pose as a green backer after the election?

ripality of Brooklyn. It is singular that none of the repr an papers are abusing Quay for telling the truth about New York state. The fact is Quay petrified them by his blunt informa-tion. He put neither sugar nor water in the medicine he gave them.

EDITGRIAL COMMENT.

The Chicago Herald calls attention to the fact that the personal campaign of Mr. Stevenson, democratic nominee for vice president has been one of the most remarkable ever made by a canddate for president or vice president. Since his nomination Mr. Stevenson has made more than sixty speeches, not including brief talks from the platform of railroad trains and informal receptions. He has spaken one or more times in the states of Illinots. Indiana. Missouri, Kentucky, Alabama, North Carolina, Ohio, Virginia, New York, Coancelicut, Michigan and West Virginia.

ginia, and wherever his voice has been heard he has rendered valuable and effective ser-vice to the cause of democracy. Though his utterances have been closely watched and weighed by vigilant and prejudiced critics, they have been able to detect no false note— have charged him with no mistake. The Savannah News says that betting on the national election is brisk in Savannah now, and from the way money is being placed, the democrats are very confident of the re-sult. Three weeks ago there was plenty of Harrison money affoat, some democrats being willing to bet on Harrison's election. But the tide has turned and Harrison money is now scarce. Reports from the doubtful states have recently been very encouraging to dem crats, and those inclined to bet on the resu are willing to put up any amount on their judgment. The betting is about even on the general result, while small odds are given on New York going democratic. These wagers are made by men who give the political situation the closest study and, therefore, may be taken as an index of how things really

ECHOES FROM THE PEOPLE.

The Georgia Victory in Paris.

Paris, October 20.-Editor Constitution .-The Constitution of the 6th instant has just reached me and I am taking a day off to read the glorious news of Georgia's overwhelming democratic victory. You, perhaps, cannot imagine with what joy and pleasure a Georgia democrat in a foreign land reads the glad tidings from home when the good people of a great state give a just rebuke to outrageous demagogism. It makes me long to be at home again to take my place in the rank and file of the democratic legions.

But I began this line as a personal congratdation to The Constitution for its great and unprecedented work. It does appear to me that your issue of the 6th is without parallel. It makes me laugh when I think of the European newspapers. Take Le Figaro, for instance, the leading journal of this continent, and read the election returns from only on of the twenty arrondisements of Paris that elects, not one but twenty mayors, (one in each arrondisement), and the returns are not published the day following the ele-The Constitution's complete returns from Georgia's 137 counties appearing the morning newspapers that comparison is absurd. Success always to The Constitution! Success to Georgia and God grant that as Georgia went in October so will the nation in November—a landslide for democracy! Yours

"The Making of a Man."

Editor Constitution—in an able and highly appreciative editorial on my new book, which appears in The Nashville Christian Advocate, of October 13th, the editor says: "We suspect from the extracts given at the headings of chapters from Victor Hugo's immortal work on Shakespeare, that Dr. Lee has been deeply influenced in his thinking by Victor Hugo."

If I have been influenced in the slightest by the distinguished French author in the composition of my book, I do not know it. I took extracts from his work on Shakespeare because their drift was in the direction I was trying to go. I have been not only influenced by Dr. William T. Harris, Dr. Thomas Hill Green, Dr. A. M. Pairburn, Dr. James Martineau, Dr. Joseph LeConte, Dr. David A. Wasson, and Mr. F. E. Abbott, but without the writings of these distinguished men my book would not have been possible. A work of Dr. James Martineau, entitled "Hours of Thought on Sacred Things," which I read when a young man in 1817, so influenced me that I have carried sentences, string expressions and besutiful turns of thought in my memory from it ever since. Some of these expressions and thoughts I find in the first edition of my book without due credit being given. I was giad the early call for a second edition of my book gave me the opportunity to correct the errors in the first edition, and to bear gisd testimeny to the value of the contributions Dr. Martineau had made to right thinking in this century.

Victor Hugo, it seems to me, is the last man for one to follow, at least if he wants to go right, in the kingdom of thought. He is a great genius, but irregular and unreliable in the drift of his thought. Of all the men who have lived among English speaking people in the present century, it seems to me that Dr. Thomas Hill Green has done most to disclose the lines along which the human mind is to travel in the next century. Hoping to induce young men who want to get down to fundamental principles in the formation of their systems of thought and also of their faith, to read on right lines, I have called attention to the distinguished names mentioned above, in the preface to the second edition of my book, and also have I been gratitude I am under to them. J. W. LEE.

Colonel Goodwin Replies to Mr. Woodward Editor Constitution—I have read the ill-tempered card of Mr. Woodward in yesterday's Constitution, and much as I regret having to trouble the public about the mayoralty race and the incidents growing out of it, feel that the circumstances demand some reference to ing I was aware that Mr. Woodward had, in an indiscriminate manner, criticised the other an indiscriminate manner, criticised the other names that had been suggested for mayor before I came out, I felt that the situation justified my candidacy, especially in view of the fact that many good citizens had, as they can attest, urged me to do so, and as I had no ambition to serve as city attorney after the close of my present term, and it occurred to me as an honorable course under the circumstances to close my municipal service with a term as mayor, when the city has grown to its present great population and commercial importance, should my friends and fellow citizens wish to bestow it upon me.

Probably I ought to have anticipated the criticism of Mr. Woodward, who seemed to have an inordinate desire for the race and for the place, and who seemed to regard the sug-gestion of those other names as offensive to him. I was aware that he had referred dispar-agingly to Mr. Hugh T. Inman's name on the agingly to are Rugh 1. Inman's name of the ground that he was a capitalist; to Hon. A. L. Kontz's name on the ground that he had been a member of the grand jury, which body had psecommended legislation to abolish contingent fees; and that he had criticised the tingent rees; and that he had criticised the suggestion of the names of Captain J. W. English and Mr. C. A. Collier before my can-didacy was announced, and that while my name was being discussed, he harshly criticised the suggestion, and charged the exist-ence of a combination which involved the election of a United States senator, of a governor and of a congressman, two years hence, or at least he was so reported in an inter-riew in The Constitution, and his explana-tion, which came late, and only after he had allowed it to stand and be circulated broadcast over the community, admitted that while he disavowed responsibility for it or any knowledge of any such condition, stated that he disavowed responsibility for it or any knowledge of any such condition, stated that he had heard such rumors both before and after the interview, which was almost equiva Soon after this interview, he published his

Soon after this interview, he published his platform, and in that expressed a hope that there would be no "mud-slinging," as he termed it, in the campaign. He followed this expressed wish of his by inaugurating a campaign of "mud-slinging" against me, and in effect charged through the press, and charges in private conversation, and in effect reiterates in his last production the charge that I am the candidate of a "ring." Indeed, this seems to be his chief stock in trade to criticise his opponent rather than to conduct his candidacy on any merit or claim of his own other than the special preparation which he seems to have the special preparation which he seems to have been making for some years with a view to acterize it.

His second charge, that of my being a ring candidate, or that I was brought out or am running in the interest of a ring, is likewise without any basis to rest upon. If he still insists that I am a candidate of a ring, why does he not have the frankness to come out and state who are the members of this ring, what conwho are the members of this ring, what con-nection I have with it, and all about it? If nection I have with it, and all about it? If he means to intimate that I am running in the interest of the marshal and clerk, I hurl back that inshuation with the statement, known to my friends both within and without the citr government, that I have been and am still the consistent opponent of perquisites for these officers, and I am not only opposed to officers receiving perquisites, but am opposed to the people paying fees or perquisites at all, except as to those of them who make default in the payment of license or tax.

I deprecate insinuation and inuendo, and must express my surprise at the conduct of my competitor in this respect.

Therefore, with regard to this second proposition or charge, it stands like the first, without anything in it, except his appeal to prejudice.

sition or charge, it stands like the first, without anything in it, except his appeal to prejudice.

In his card of yesterday, among other things, he says: "I am told that men have been hired to go about over the city and tell such lies in order to defeat me in this race." In regard to this, I have only to say that if he means to instinuate that I have been a party to any such thing, or that any real friend of mine has been, that the statement and insinuation are absolutely and unqualifiedly false. I will not characterize it more strongly.

Some of the other matters to which he referred, I had never heard charged or suggested against him.

In conclusion, I may say for myself, that in the several former races I have made with competitors before the people of Atlanta, I have never before found a disposition in any one of them to try to build up their own race by depreciating the merits of their opponent, and in view of the course of Mr. Woodward's campaign from the outset, it is passing strange that he should now be crying out against what he says has been charged upon here, we some one person out of the $6,000 of our population, whereas the charges against myself, as above referred to, have been made by my opponent himself.

From the general character of his card, I do not know whether he meant to intimate that I had been a party to any such charges against his character, as he statel, but if so any such intimation was absolutely without foundation, and must have been known so to be to him. Whenever I have charges to make against him or any other person, it will be done in no indefinite or uncertain way.

As to so such of his card as acems to be a bid made in his desperation and anxiety, for the support of some orders of which he has appreced to be a member. I have no comment to make, except simply to call attention to it.

Before closing this communication, which is already somewhat lengthy. I will only add in conclusion, that some other absurd criticisms of my candidacy will be answered in unbile addresses before the peonle which will be made in the course of this and next week. Respectfully, JOHN B. GOODWIN.

Card from Rev. Sam W. Small.

Editor Constitution—Please do me the personal kindness to let me state that the report in an afternoon paper that I used "indecent language in the presence of ladies" in my Jonesboro speech, is a mistake. I did no such thing. A drunken man brought on all the disorder that happened. Otherwise I received from the good people of Jonesboro that chivalrous respect which they are accustomed to allow to visitors. I am not a blackguard and do not wish to rest under the false report above mentioned. Respectfully,

SAM W. SMALL.

In a room where one of these long distance telephones is kept there is a very peculiar one of a very common kind of animal. It is a singing mouse.

The mouse half balances itself upon its back legs and begins a chattering acceptance.

The Covington, Gn., Star. The magnitude of The Atlanta Consiltu tion's enterprise in reporting the result of it occurred, and doing it so accurately and well, leads us to believe that it will give the country a pretty full and correct return of the presidential election on Wednesday morning next. The fact is, there are "no other worlds for it to encompass" now but that! The Constitution never goes backward.

From The Waynesboro, Ga., True Citizen.
In The Citizen's judgment there is a radical reform needed in Georgia pensions.

There is neither sense nor justice in putting all widows of soldiers and wounded soldiers on the same footing. Hundreds receive pensions who are in no wise in need of them and ought not to have them. There comes within the knowledge of The Citizen two men, one of whom is a banker and worth $200,000, the other a prosperous business man, and yet each of these receive annually the same amount as poor unfortnates with similar wounds. A widow living in a brown stone front draws her $100 per annual with the same regularity as the one in ab-with the same regularity as the one in absolute need.

The last legislature acted unwisely in rejecting the soldiers' home in Atlanta, and them, as if to make amends, enacts into law the present unjust and unnecessary method of distribution. Let the whole business be repealed. Then let the legislature accept of the soldiers' home and pass a general law granting pensions to those, and those only, who need them. Let those who are able to support themselves do so, and let the remainder of the $400,000 appropriated to widows go into the school fund to give us free schools the year round.

From The Columbus, Ga., Enquirer-Sun.

A bill has been introduced in the house by Mr. Fleming, of Richmond, to change the time of holding the session of the legislature. It provides that the first session shall open on the fourth Wednesday in October and the second to open the first Wednesday in July. Why not make them both summer sessions? The argument in favor of the July session has always been that the time is more convenient for members in every line of business. If it applies to the second session the argument. venient for members in every line of if it applies to the second session t ment is equally strong for the first.

THE WORK AT HEADQUARTERS. There is No Holding Up of the Labor in the Committee Rooms.

Things are ripening in Georgia for a grand democratic victory—that's certain.

To judge from the letters Chairman Athinson is receiving from day to day one an Atkinson is getting things in for the home stretch. He is writ readiness for the home stretch. He is writing to every county chairman and every club chairman in the entire state urging upon them the necessity of hard work between this and election day. They are calling their committees together once more and sounding the note of war. The battle is on for a cause of democracy from the mountains to the sea.

The republicans have put out their ticket for the national election leaving blanks for the capgressional candidates. Their ticket is being sent out by Chairman A. E. Buck, of their state Central compittee, to all regions of the state, and reads as follows:

For President:

BENJAMIN HABBISTON

For President:
BENJAMIN HARRISON.
For Vice President:

The democratic campaigners are all turning their eyes towards the tenth district.
They are going there in flocks next week and will stir the district from the remotest rural districts to the villages, towns and cities, and Watsonism is fated. Hon. John H. Blount, of Macon will speak at Louisville, Jefferson county, Saturday. The other speakers will be in other counties of the district that day.

RACK TO DEMOCRACY.

BACK TO DEMOCRACY. The Third Party Men Are Coming

Every Day.

Augusta, Ga., November 1.—(Spe The recent wild scenes in Lincoln and Mcfruit and a great many of the former third party followers are returning to democracy, thoroughly disgusted by the outrageous conduct of the populists. In conversation with a gentleman from Lincolnton, who travels about the tenth district considerably, a reporter for The Chronicle learns that many people have now openly espoused the democratic party and are very emphatic the democratic party and are very emphatic in their denunciations of the actions of Watson and his followers. Among the cards from former prominent third party men announcing their withdrawal from that party since the Thomson episode, the following from Mr. J. P. Sturkey to The Chronicle will be of interest as showing the drift of things:

Mr. Sturkey's Card.

drift of things:

Mr. Sturkey's Card.

Lincolaton, Ga., October 27.—Editor Chronicle: I have been a people's party man since the inception of this new move. I was elected secretary of the people's party executive committee for this county when this committee was first appointed, and held that office till this date. I was also made president of the banner Peoples' Party Club of this county—a club of 130 members.

I made several speeches and otherwise worked to the best of my ability to promote the cause of the new party. I was honest in my convictions that the movement was in the interest of reform in governmental affairs and would finally result in great good to the country. But recent events have clearly and unmistably demonstrated the fact that such was not true, and can never be true. If the manner in which the people's party acted at Lincolnton the first three days of this week, and their reported conduct at Thomson is not enough to drive all good, intelligent men away from them and back to the democratic party, then my estimate of southern manhood is lowered.

For citizeus to meet in a peaceful, lawabiding town and on a mere rumor, which, according to the best evidence, had no foundation in fact, arm themselves and furnish arms for negroes and become transformed into a howling mob, ready upon the slightest pretense to destroy life and property is more than I am able to endorse or countenance in any party.

I am able to endorse or countenance in any party.

White men armed and furnishing arms to negroes, parading the streets and cursing like mad, threatening life and property, exciting to frenzy women and children, were scenes witnessed here the first of this week. Negrorule will never do for the country. No man has been more earnest in his advocacy of the people's party doctrines than I, but I have been made to see the trend of affairs and the handwriting on the wall, and from this good day forward I shall stick to the democratic party, support its candidates and doctrines, and advise all others to do likewise. I have no harsh words for those who differ with me politically, but to all of my third party friends I say stop and consider before it is too late.

Now, the question of his successor has begun to be agitated, three or four applications have been received by President Hirsch and the board will have plenty of material to select from.

The board will probably make the office a more lucrative one than in the past, and they are determined to have it filled by none but the best of men.

President Hirsch gave all the employees of the hospital a sound talk Monday night. He gave them warning that the first one of them that overstepped the hospital rules would have to go. The board is determined to have harmony in the management and make of the Grady hospital what it was intended to be, the ideal institution of the kind in the south.

was solemnized with beautiful exercises in the church of the Immaculate Conception and also in the church of Saints Peter and Paul. It was likewise celebrated with impressive services in St. Luke's and St. Philip's Episcopal churches.

The two days have been celebrated with the beautiful season of "Holloween" ever since the year 610. It was first observed about the first of May, but after the year 844 it was changed to the first of November. The services today in the different churches will be peculiarly interesting and the day throughout the Catholic and also the Episcopal world will be fittingly observed.

DR. C. A. MORAN

Decides to Remove His Practice from Augusta to Atlanta.

Dr. C. A. Moran, of Augusta, has decided to make Atlanta his home, and will practice his profession here. Dr. Moran graduated from the Southern Medical college of Atlanta eight years ago. After that he took a course in the Postgraduate Medical school and hospital of New York. Speaking of his departure from Augusta, The Chronicle says:

"Dr. C. A. Moran will leave for Atlanta tomorrow to practice medicine in the capital city. Dr. Moran has been in Augusta during five years, and has had a good practice. here. It is regretted that Dr. Moran will leave Augusta, but Atlanta has gained a good physician. He was at one time city physician, succeeding Dr. H. H. Smith. He was also surgeon of the Irish Volunteers, and has been an active member of the Hibernians and C. T. A. U. and other worthy organizations of the city. The doctor was a resident of Woodlawn, and the best wishes of many friends there and all over the city have been given to him, hoping him a successful continuation of a good practice enjoyed here."

What Mr. Bruce Believes. r. A. C. Bruce, candidate for council from sixth ward, was talking about the needs

What Mr. Bruce Believes:

Mr. A. C. Bruce, candidate for council from the sixth ward, was talking about the needs of the city.

"If elected my main object would be to establish a board of public works before which all contemplated improvements would come, which board I would have composed of one lawyer, one practical builder or engineer, two business men of acknowledged financial ability, who, with the mayor ex-officio, would make a board of five to control that part of the city's business. I would favor just as much street improvement every year as the taxes will justify, of course taking the most important thoroughfares first, and then have the work done just right, so as not to require any repairs for years to come. The extension of some of our streets I consider important for the business of our fast growing city. The question of sewerage has already been laid out by a skillful engineer, and I think our present city engineer is having the work carried out in accordance with his report, which, I believe, has been adopted by the city. As to our finances, a broad, economical and consistent view of the city's demands would be all that is required at the hands of the city council. I think," he added, "the idea of Mr. Meador looking to the establishment of a house of refuge is worthy of commendation, and if I should get the endorsement in the primary election. I would take pleasure in assisting him in his good wark.

"I have been in Atlanta about twelve years," said Mr. Bruce. "I think I am well known to the citizens of Atlanta, having a large business experience with them during the last ten or twelve years, and am willing to leave my election in their hands."

* Holbrook in Jail Yet. Parke Holbrook, the slayer of George Wal-raven, is still confined in the jall. An at-tempt will be made to secure ball for him soon. DEEPER THAN EVER

All the work that the detectives have done on the case has been in following the. done on the case has been in following the theory that two white men were at the bottom of little Marie's strange disappearance. appeared at Captain Wright's office. They had heard that they were wanted and hurried to give themselves up.

Captain Wright sent for Maude Denham, but before carrying her into the presence of the two men, he asked her to describe the appearance of the two men who had hired her to kidnap little Marie. She gave a description of the two men, but she made the bad break of giving Reynolds a full beard.

When carried in the room where the two men were, she pointed to Collins and said he was the man. And then she broke into a rambling talk, during which Mr. Collins sat quietly. When she was through he asked to be allowed to question her.

After the first two questions she became badly confounded, and said that she was mistaken, that Collins was not the man.

She then told a new story entirely, bringing in some one else and leaving Collins out altogether.

The detectives were convinced that Collins nor Reynolds had no connection whatever with the kidnaping and they were allowed to go. The girl was again locked up.

over with the kinaping and they were allowed to go. The girl was again locked up.

The detectives are at an utter loss to know where to begin work on the case now. There's no place where they can pick up an intelligent clue. They are convinced that there was some object behind the kidnaping; that the negro girl was hired to steal little Marie awny from home. But the girl has told so many stories that to try to follow up one of them would be a waste of time. The girl has proven herself to be a champion liar, and is a hardened specimen of her race.

The detectives are making no move in the case, but are waiting for developments. They are 'n the attitude of Wilkins Micawber, waiting for something to turn up. A warrant has been sworn out for the girl, but she is still held at the police station.

PASSED COUNTERFEIT MONEY.

Henry Miller, a White Man, Arrested for Henry Miller, a big rough looking white man, who says he is from Charleston, S. C., was arrested on Decatur street last night for passing counterfeit money. Patnight for passing counterfeit money. Patrolman Taylor made the arrest, and he had a lively time getting his prisoner to the signal box. But for the appearance of Detective Green on the scene the big Charlestonian might have gained his liberty. After a hard struggle with Miller he was handcuffed and put in the wagon.

Miller passed three or four counterfeit dollars at different places on Decatur street. One of the places was Hentschel's bar.

Patrolman Taylor was called in and arrested Miller. The officer says Miller passed several counterfeit coins on the street.

Miller denied knowing that the money was counterfeit. He said it was given him in change for a $10 bill. He was held for investigation. Detective Green believes that Miller is a crook. He is evidently a very shrewd citizen.

HERE'S THAT ORDINANCE. The Act of Council Prohibiting the Estab lighment of Mrs. Wolfe's Home. A great deal has recently been said about Mrs. Wolfe's home for girls. Here is the ordinance upon which police interference is based:

based:

"Be it ordained by the mayor and general council of the city of Atlanta and it is hereby ordained by authority of same:
"Section 1. From and after the passage of this ordinance it shall be unlawful for any person or persons in said city to erect or maintain any hospital, infirmary, house or place or refuse, or refuse, or refuse, or refuse, or refuse, or refuse. person or persons in said city to erect or maintain any hospital, infirmary, house or place or refuge, or reformatory or asylum, or other place where persons are received for reformation or treatment, without first having obtained the consent of the mayor and general council of said city for the erection or maintenance of the same. And all applications to the mayor and general council for permission to erect, maintain or carry on any place for any such purpose must plainly and distinctly show the particular locality where the same is desired, for what purpose the same is desired, for what purpose the same is desired to be erected or maintained, and what class of persons are to be admitted to the same.

"Sec. 2. Be is further ordained by the authority aforesaid that any person or persons who shall violate the provisions of the foregoing section of this ordinance shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than $100 and imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, either or both, in the discretion of the court, for each and every such offense committed.

"Sec. 3. Repeals conflicting laws.

ATLANTA'S MONEY. The Special Committee Hears from Atlanta's

Bankers. That council committee appointed three or four weeks ago to consider a more profi-table plan for disposing of Atlanta's money than the one now in vogue, met in the mayor's office yesterday morning.

mayor's office yesterday morning.

The committee is composed of Mr. Hill, of the fourth ward; Mr. Boyd, of the aldermanic board, and Mr. Holbrook, of the sixth ward. Nearly every banker in town was present at the meeting and was heard from.

The resolution providing for the committee was introduced by Mr. Hill and had for its object an inquiry with a view of ascertaining whether or not Atlanta's money, which now goes to the bank in which the treasurer of the city works, cannot be so disposed of that the city will receive an interest on the daily deposits. Some of the bankers present at the meeting advised the committee that the project was feasible and could be accomplished, while others advocated the continuance of the present plan as the best and safest.

The committee has the question yet under consideration, but will perfect a report before the council meets Monday.

A glossy high collar, a gaudy four-in-hand, a broad expanse of immaculate shirt front, a tailor made suit of clothes and bright patent leathers showed that he was one of the colored four hundred. A big, black smile lit up his shining features. He answered to the common sounding name of

Will Foster.
The four Chinamen looked sadly out of place, and their facial expressions couldn't have been more woe begone and wretched if they were going to be led to the slaughter.

One of them was a big smudge-faced celestial who is the proprietor of a laundry establishment on Whitehall street. The others were his helps in the shop. One was a lanky, lean-faced, long-queued, sadhave been disappointed in love, or was addicted to poetry. His queue was a massive arrangement and was doubled up like a snake on his big head. of the awful offense of calling the dude a negro.

It was a curious assortment of human beings before the police judge, and he couldn't restrain a smile.

It appeared from a vague ontline of the trouble given in the broken Mellican tongue of the smudge-faced celestial that the negro dude had come into his establishment to get his laundry. He gave the dude some change, but the dude didn't like his style of handing it to him and he got violent. He rushed at the poetle looking Chinaman with a chair, and created panic and consternation in the laundry. He gave the unfortunate Mongolian a paralyzing blow with the chair and it took four Chinamen to hold the agitated dusky dude until another could run for Policeman Upchurch. The soldier came in to get his laundry while the fight was in progress. It was a big show to him.

was in progress. It was a big show to him.

Dude Foster explained in person his part in the melee. He seemed to be real weary over the whole thing.

"Yer honor, sah," he said, "dis Chinaman handed me de change like I was a dog—like I was a dog, sah. I didn't like to be given change like a dog by a Chinaman, sah. I said, 'why yer give me change like dat!' What'd he say? He didn't give me no 'spectful answer. He called me a nigger! sah, a nigger! He actually called me a nigger! I couldn't stand no 'sults fum him so, I spects I popped him wid a chair. Jedge I ain't guilty. He gib me change like a dog and called me a nigger."

"what are you if you arn't a negro? I'm surprised."

The dude looked hurt. The poetic Chinaman faintly smiled, and nodded vigorously in approval. The dude shifted around uncomfortably and faintly assented.

"I is a nigger, jedge, dat's so."

"Yes you are a nigger," said the judge, "and you are sahamed of your own race, but you've no right to be. I would fine you heavily but for the intercession of your employer. Five and cost and if you are ever here again, it'll be the stockade. You can't go about this town cutting such a big figure."

The Chinamen seemed as if they would nod their heads off. The dude looked as if he was going to faint. He was so terribly broken up that he almost turned white.

Sugar was taken in hand and advanced from 110 (-8 to 112 1-4, and some of the shorts were frightened into covering by the boldness of buying. Chicago Gas sold up to 85 1-8, highest point ever attained, and subsepuently reached 94 1-4 to 94 3-8. American Tobacco jumped from 123 to 126 and closed at 125, Cotton Oll and Lead ruled firm at an advance of 1-2 to 1. Among railroads Grangers and Trunk line shares were in brisk request early in the day but afterwards lost the improvement. New York Central was a marked exception, rising 1 1-8 to 111 1-8 and closing at the top notch. Reading and a marked exception, rising 1 1-8 to 111 1-8 and closing at the top notch. Reading and Northern Pacific preferred, were feverish and New England wenq. The lass named declined from 46 7-8 to 45 and closed at 45 3-8. The flurry in money, which carried the rate for call loans up to 9 per cent, was used against the market, but with comparatively little effect, because it is well known that money called in on account of November interest and dividend disbursements will specify find its way back to general circulation.

The bears were discounting a probable advance in Bank of England rate, Thursday, from 3 to 4 but according to advices received by leading bankers, if any change is made it will be on a basis of 3 1-2. Western Union will be on a basis of 3 1-2. Western Union ruled quiet at 95 1-2 to 7-8, closing at the former figure, same as Monday. The directors at the meeting today postponed action on the matter of distributing new stock until Thursday, November 10th, next, in order to comply with certain legal formalities. It is generally conceded that the stockholders will receive 10 per cent of new stock. Hocking Valley moved up a point on the report that a contract has been concluded between that rand and the Norfolk and Western, whereby Hocking Valley is to have 3,000 tons or more of Pocahontas Coal daily to Toledo. The market closed quiet and generally weak.

J. S. Rache & Co.'s Stock Letter.

By Private Wire to B. W. Martin, Manager.

NEW YORK, Novmber 1.-There was no London market today. The market here was rather inclined to weakness despite the efforts of the cliques to raise prices. Whisky opened with a bulge but still long stock seemed to come in from some source or another and the stock felt it all day. The advance lately has been very sharp, and we think the stock high enough for the present. In Gas the buying was the same as heretofore but at 96 and above there was considerable long sock for sale. Sugar was taken in hand but they were not able to do anything great though the traders took a hand in raising it. Money was active and loaned up to 8 per cent, but we do not look for any higher money, as the drain west has decreased considerably. Some money will have to go south to move the cotton crop but not enough to interfere to any extent. We think that in view of the coming elections and the uncertainty thereof it is well to be very conservanctive, especially as the people who are working this market are carrying a big load.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, November 1—That the "unexpected alwas happens" is an axiom in trade circles, and the sharp advance in Liverpool this morning is only another evidence of the truth of the remark. Late last evening, under the demoralised feeling caused by the heaviest receipts ever known—84,813 bales—January sold as low as 8.08. Today the trade was astonished to find an advance of 3-846 in the Liverpool market as the result. The reason for the advance in Liverpool, as cabled us by Mr. Ellison, is an estimate of consumption for the coming year. As intimated last evening, the estimate is a very bullish one. His cable gives the consumpt on last year as 8,218,000 bales of American cotton, 1,342,00 of Indian cotton and 846,000 af Egyptian and Brazillian cotton. For the coming year he estimates the consumption at 3,413,000 bales of American cotton, 1,340,000 bales of Indian cotton and 847,000 bales of Egyptian and Brazillan cotton. He adds if current corpositimate of 7,500,000 bales proves correct, prices will advance. In addition to this estimate published by Mr. Ellison, there is a rumor current in Liverpool that Mr. Neill will estimate the crop next week at 7,350,000 bales. From New Orleans estimates are current of receipts tomorrow of 12,000 to 15,000 bales. Upon the receipt for these estimates the market became casier. During the afternoon the market gradually improved in tone, closing firm at 12 points advance on the day. Immediately after the close the outside prices were paid for cotton, as the trade did not care to sell cotton after their recent experience.

NEW YORK, November 1—Liverpool this morning opened unchanged, and subsequently gained between 223-546d, the advance mainly due to a rumored estimate of 7,230,000 bales by Neill, which was supplemented, as we understand, by a report saying that Ellison figures the requirements of the world this year at 8,490,000 bales of American cotton. Furthermore, our friends cable us that the strikes are not likely to be serious, so that all in all the situation was very much different from yesterday when everything seemed discouraging. Under the circumstances it was not strange that the market here should have opened higher; in fact, we rather expected that prices would have done somewhat better. As it was, the improvement during the morning extended to nearly 16g16 points, a part of which was lost in the course of the day, when it became known that New Orleans would again show a large movement tomorrow. In fact, the receipts both at the primary interior points and the ports have been somewhat larger than generally expected, and the probabilities are this week will show but a falling off of from 30,000 to 35,000 bales, if so much, as compared with last year. nuch, as compared with last year.

Corn opened strong. There were rumors of a contemplated squeeze in November corn, but in view of the fact that there are nearly $,000,000 bushels of contract corn here now and steadily increasing, these fears were not general. Deliveries in November contracts were about 2,600,000 bushels, most of it going to Eggleston, who, it was rumored, was acting for John B. Lyon. The market losed weak at %c loss.

CHICAGO, November 1.—During the early part of the session the grain markets were fairly strong, although there was a great lack of interest. Some large shorts were apparently buying December, while some of the large traders who bought May a few days ago appeared to be selling. In the cash market car lots were disposed of at from 1-4 to 3-4 cents per bushel higher than yesterday, No. 3, 'red being in better demand. No. 4 corn was also about 1-2c higher with a good demand for all car lots. Oats were steady but apparently not quite so strong as during the past few days. In a speculative way however the whole line seemed to be depressed with an apparent downward tendency. Liverpool and London were quoted fully 1-2c higher on spots and futures but there was no response to the advance here. On the contrary the receipts and light outward movement overbalanced all bull news. Nearly everything in the grain and provision line closed lower than yesterday. From the way some of the heavy packers are selling hog products for January delivery, we should judge they are expecting a liberal increase in receipts of hogs. Correspondents of some of the western hog dealers, say that the farmers are selling more freely. There is no profit, however, in packing hogs at the present price of hog product.

THE ELECTIONS.

Justice Logan B Bleckley Blected for Six Years.

M HOWARD WINS HIS RACE.

Interesting Contest in the General Assembly Yesterday—To Be Con-tinued Today.

The elections are on in the general as-mbly. They started yesterday and seven accowere filled. In only one election was ere's contest and that was between Rob-Levis, of Hancock, and W. M. Howard solicitor of the Northern circuit. Mr. ward the present incumbent was re-

Hunt solicitor for the unexpired term of the Tynt circuit and Marcus W. Beck soliciter of the same circuit for four years from teneral 1, 1893.

were thirty-two places to be filled then the elections began. Twenty-five re-

min. It takes about twenty minutes to had an election.

There is all of eight hours' work remaining unless the joint session can strike a ivelier pace and that is not probable. No the was wasted yesterday. The senate entered the hall of the house at 10:20 a, m., and in four minutes President Clay had amounced that the assembly was ready to receive nominations for chief justice of the supreme court of Georgia. Mr. Fleming, of Richmond, nominated the rule."

"I have the honor," Mr. Fleming resumed, "to present for chief justice of Georgia the present incumbent, the Hon. Logan E. Bleckley." (Applause.)

Mr. Martin, of Fulton, and Mr. Massengale, of Rabun, seconded the nomination. On the call of the roll forty-three senators and a 168 representatives voted, making a total of 211 votes.

The announcement of Judge Bleckley's election was greeted with applause.

election was greeted with applause.
Colonel Mark Hardin began to shake a sigar box violently as though it were a bottle of medicine "to be well shaken before taken." That little box contained cards on which were written the names of thirty straits.

President Clay stated that the law would be strictly carried out. "The clerk will shake the box well," said he addressing Col-onel Mark who was still slinging his arms as thakes.

The candidates were all on the anxious

The candidates were all on the anxious at They seemed to wish the thing was ever and each was wishing that some other direct would be called first.

An interested audience looked down from the galleries. Candidates dropped into seats over the house to listen. Senators and representatives were all attention President Clay reached his hand over into the box and drew out a card. Without looking at it he passed it to Colonel Bill Harris, who called out:

He was nominated by Mr. Howard, of Baldwin, and the nomination was seconded by Mr. Turner, of Putnam.

The call of the roll proceeded in a formal way and 200 votes were cast. Thirty-eight were senators. Other candidates were calling members out to the smoking rooms and the lobby for renewal of pledges.

The Coweta circuit was drawn next. Hon, Sam W. Harris, the present judge, was nominated by Mr. Render, of Meriwether. Mr. Freeman, of Troup, and Mr. McGarrity, of Carroll. Judge Harris had no opposition and got 201 votes.

Mr. T. A. Atkinson, the present incumbent was renominated for solicitor general by Mr. Render, of Meriwether, and seconds were given by Mr. Fleming, of Richmond, Mr. Render, of Troup, and Senator Pinson. Senator Whittaker, of the thirty-swenth, withdrew W. H. Daniel's name and took wishes.

Mr. Atkinson was elected receiving 201 good wishes.

Mr. Atkinson was elected, receiving 201 wotes.

Flint circuit followed the Coweta, John J. Hunt, the incumbent was nominated for the unexpired term to which he was appointed by Governor Northen.

John I. Hall placed him in nomination and his name was seconded by Mr. Bloodworth, of Monroe, and Mr. Reagan, of Henry. Mr. Hunt had no opposition and received 201 votes.

For the full term of four years from January 1, 1893, Senator M. W. Beck, of Butts county, was nominated by Mr. Dempsey. Senator Wooten, Mr. Hodges, of Bibt; Mr. Stapleton, of Sunter; Mr. Stewart, of DeKalb, and Senator Blalock added their seconds. Mr. J. F. Redding withdrew from the race by a letter received early in the morning. So Mr. Beck received the full vote—201.

The Northern Circuit.

All this time it had been smooth sailing. Not a contested office had been struck. As a matter of fact nobody cared to be first man either among the contesting candidates. However, somebody had to be first and it turned out to be the Northern circuit. Judge Hamilton McWhorter had no opposition and he was re-elected unanimously. For solicitor Mr. Howard and Mr. Lewis were running. Each felt confident. Everybody fels that it was close. This might prove to be the key to the vote in another circuit or two, and many kept tab as the roll was called.

Mr. Howard was nominated by Senator Reese and the nomination was seconded

Mr. Howard was nominated by Senator Reese and the nomination was seconded by Mr. King, of Fulton. Mr. Lewis was nominated by Warner Hill and the nomination was seconded by Mr. Johnson, of Fulton; Mr. Fleming, of Richmond; Mr. Boitsuillet, of Bibb; Mr. Tatum, of Dade; Senator Wilson, of the thirteenth, and Senator Humphries.

poll was listened to with close attention. Mr. Lewis led off in the senate, and he had a lead of two when the house roil was reached. He kept the lead down into the B's. There Mr. Howard went ahead and lept there until the end.

When Mr. Wilson, of Ware, cast the 110th vote for Mr. Howard there was applause, as that was the aftery mark. The vote resulted: Howard, 113; Lewis, 93.

lege of going home to vote on election day early yesterday mrning.

So soon as the journal had been read when the house was first called to order, Hon. William H. Fleming, of Augusta, moved to reconsider the action taken yesterday. Mr. Fleming said he was in favor of the house adjourning, provided the members would be called back in time to hold a session the day after the election. He was not in favor of the plan to adjourn for three days.

was not in rayor of the plant to sujourn for three days.

The motion to reconsider prevailed and then Hon, W. F. Smith, of Gwinnet, introduced the following resolution:

Whereas, One of the most important national elections that has occurred in a quarter of a century will take place next Tuesday, November 8th, and that every Georgian feels an interest in the result of said election, therefore be it ber oits, and the result of said election, therefore be it Resolved. That every member of this house who desires to do so shall be granted leave of absence to return to his home to cast his

They May Marry.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Pike, of Jackson, bearing upon the laws for punishment for the crime of seduction. The bill seeks to amend section 4,311 of the code of Georgia which prescribes the punishment of such crimes. It makes it permissible for the prosecution to cease at any time upon the marriage of the parties, or the bona fide promise of marriage only so long as the parties live together as man and wife, unless the separation is without the fault of the seducer.

The other sections of the bill simply provide for the execution of the law should the bill become a law.

To Attend the Funeral.

A committee was appointed by motion of

A committee was appointed by motion of Mr. Boynton to attend the funeral of Senator Jones.

It was a joint resolution providing for the appointment of the committee and stated that the committee should be made up of three from the house and two from the senate. Those from the house were Messrs. Boynton, Calvin and Mershon.

After this was done several applications for unanimous consent to introduce bills were granted and the following new bills were put on first reading:

Arnold of Walton—A bill to amend section 4036 of the code of 1882, to provide for taking bond where certiorar is applied for in possessory warrant cases.

Charters of Lumpkin—A bill to regulate details of proceedings in securing sew trials. Neel of Bartow—A bill to amend section 8510 of the code by adding thereto the following: 'The sworn answer of such party responsive to the prayer for discovery, as to facts within his own knowledge may be read in evidence by either in the cause in the same way and manner as the answer of a witness to ordinary interrogatories are read and shall be entitled to no more weight or effect than if such party had been examined cations for new trials shall be made and for other purposes. Also

A bill to be entitled an act to regulate the practical investigation to motions for new trials shall be made and far other purposes. Howard of Baldwin—A bill to exchange a trial and to prescribe when and how applications for new trials shall be made and far other purposes. cations for new trisis shall be made and far other purposes.

Howard of Baldwin—A bill to exchange a tract of land in Milledgeville for another tract now belonging to the Girls' Normal college, so as to have the Baldwin jail moved nearer the courthouse, at the same time rendering a convenience to the school.

Thomason of Morgan—A bill to authorize an increase in the number of companies that constitute the third regiment of Georgia volunteers. Also to authorize an increase in the number of majors in said regiment.

The senate arrived at this hour according the resolutions concurred in and the general assembly went into joint session at 11:15 o'clock for the purpose of electing judges and superior court solicitor generals.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP.

The persons who have been circulating the charges of a deal between the republicans and third party men in these elections, started the talk afresh after the Howard-Lewis contest yesterday. That was immediately and vigorously denied by Mr. Howard and by all of his friends. Mr.

Mr. Howard and by all of his friends. Mr. Howard had a majority of the democrats in the legislature.

"The charge that there was any sort of a deal between the third party and republican members and myself," said Mr. Howard, "is absolutely untrue. Of course, I was glad to get one man's vote as well as every other man's vote in the legislature, but there was no deal or combination. The third party people did vote for me, but they say openly that the reason they did so was because Mr. Lewis and his friends openly said he did not want the vote of those gentlemen and would not have it. I don't see how Mr. Lewis could have expected the votes after such statements. There is an attempt being made by the friends of some other candidates to raise the cry of combination. The only reason this is done is in the hope of hurting some other candidates whom those who raise the cry are opposing. I have no idea how the third party men will vote in the other contests to come up, but I do know that there is no truth in the charge of a combination so far as I am concerned. I was elected over Mr. Lewis by a majority of democratic votes and the third party and the republican votes, only swelled that majority."

Hon. W. E. Wooten is the youngest member of the senate. He was just old enough to be eligible and that was about all. He is not twenty-six years old yet.

Judge Robert Falligant, of the Eastern

Judge Robert Falligant, of the Eastern circuit. Colonel Pat Walsh, of Augusta, and a party of senators and representatives were guests of Captain Bob Lowry on a lallyho drive Saturday afternoon.

The members who had the hotels crowd-ed for four days are getting located in boarding houses.

It was stated Saturday that a bill was being drawn to repeal the present law making judges and solicitors elective by the general assembly and conferring the appointing power on the governor. That would be going back to old principles. Such a bill would probably not be fought by unsuccessful candidates.

M. C. Edwards, jr., of Dawson, is circulating among the politicians. Mr. Edwards is here in the interest of his fellowtownsman, Jim Griggs, and also to represent the contestant in the contested case from Webster county of Harrell vs. Sears. Mr. Edwards is a rising young attorney of southwest Georgia and has already made an enviable reputation for himself with brilliant prospects for the future.

Colonel F. B. Dillard has retired from the race for solicitor of the Pataula circuit. He has made a most splendid race and his friends say lacked but a few votes to se-cure his election. A man having his ability and courteous address will not be permitted to stay out of public life.

Mr. Hodges, of Bibb, starts off with a handful of good bills. He's a good one and no mistake.

"Billy" Osborne, of Chatham—the fellows call him "Billy" because he's clever, not that he isn't dignified with it—is one of the handsomest members and at the same time a sober-minded, discerning legislator. Senator M. P. Reese is already looked upon as a leader, upon as a leader.

Brother Ham longs for the excitement of a good old fashioned democratic rally now and then, and for the tempting odor of barbecued meats that erstwhile did waft with summer breezes to his nasal apertures, while with eloquence and wit he did stir the "snollygosters" like lions in a cage. But Ham is happy wherever you take him and is easily at home in the house of representatives.

Jones, of Dougherty, is one of the best friends the confederate veterans have in the house.

James White, a page in the house, is a nephew of R. D. Render, of Meriwether county—an orphan boy, who lost his mother in infancy, a native of Lowndes county, Alabama. He was taken by Mr. Render and wife to rear after the death of his mother. He is a bright little fellow and one of the politest and most obliging pages in the house. He hears every hand clap in the house and darts off to bring the bills to the clerk's desk as nimbly as a squirrel.

as nimbly as a squirrel,

"I was quoted this morning as saying that it was a third party crowd that recently invaded Dalton at night and killed a colored man," said Neel, of Floyd, yesterday. "I did not intend to be so understood. I have no definite information on this point. Rumor charges it to the third party, but I would not be understood as making an unqualified charge of that sort. Whether they were third partylies, democrats or republicans, they deserve the severest censure and the speedlest and severest punishment."

Messenger Jim Smith never had such active, manly little fellows to play the roles of pages in the house as he has found this year. The boys who "tote" the messages to and from the representative hall this year are: Clifford McLeod, James Dupree, Roy Newman, James White, Elgian Stewart, Engene Turner and Edward Furgerson. They are all energetic and courteous.

Dick Howard says he just must go home to vote. "Baldwin is a close county," said he, "and while quite a number of the third party-ites are coming around, still I want to be there to see the fun."

Hon. William H. Fleming, of Augusta, will go down to the tenth district several times to speak at democratic railies in the near furge. He will go to Lincolnton next Saturday and with John Shannon will shell the woods.

Mr. John D. Little, son of ex-Attorney General W. A. Little, and a rising young law-yer, has been mingling with the legislators several days. He is here doing valuable ser-vice in the contests for solicitorships and judgeships for a number of his aspiring friends.

Colonel Mershon, of Glynn, is going to introduce several good bills for the benefit of the people of Georgia who live down on the coast and amid the long leaf pines. He is a great believer in direct trade from Georgia ports to the great world over the blue waters and has already introduced a ringing resolution endorsing it.

Hon. Price Gilbert, of Columbus, seems to have a buil dog grip on that solicitorship.

Boyd, of McDuffle, keeps cool—surprisingly cool for a man who comes from a county so wrought up with political agitation as is McDuffle since Watson's frightful nightmare. NOMINATIONS CONFIRMED.

retail department, and Mr. E. P. McBurney, the treasurer of the company, were on hand to show the visitors their magnificent display of flowers.

The interior of the store was a perfect paradise, an Eden of lovely blooms and palms and ferms and potted plants.

A long wreath of asparagus fern, caught here and there with ribbon, hung against the glass door and gave the entrance a pretty appearance. The show windows were full of palms, ferns and calfa lillies in pots. The counters were covered with beautiful floral designs and baskets filled with roses. One funeral design was particularly striking. It was a broken wheel unde of white and yellow arbutus and trimmed in asparagus fern and maiden bair. There were magnificent wreaths of many colored flowers.

The immense refrigerator with its glass front at the rear end of the store was filled with chrysanthemums of every color. The specimens were the finest ever seen in Atlanta, and hundreds of them were sold. Flowers were sold by the baskettul all day.

The Westview Floral Company is a strong enterprise. The officers are: President, R. J. Lowry: vice president, J. S. Bigby: treasurer, E. P. McBurney; manager, Colin Ogston. The company is the largest grower of cut flowers in the south. It is the largest imported 150,000 this year.

The company's greenhouses at Westview are large and extensive. Large orders of flowers at wholesale are shipped every day. Yeatenday they shipped 500 bridgs roses to New Orleans.

The store at 5 Peachtree, is only the retail department. It is elegantly fitted up for packing flowers, and it will be a favorite line for the young men to go to buy flowers for their sweethearts.

WILL WATTS AGAIN

He is Arrested for the Big Burglary on Simpson Street,

BUT IT'S NOT HIS FIRST TIME

He's Been There Before Many's the Time He Was the Hero of the Big Savannah Sensation.

The notorious Will Watts, the young Atlantian who has figured in a number of ensations in criminal circles, was again bagged yesterday.

The good work of Detectives Etheridge and Walton landed the young man behind the prison bars this time, and fastened the guilt of a big burglary upon him.

Watts's name is known to the police of every city in Georgia. He has been in several burglaries in Atlanta and has almost invariably succeeded in getting out ithout a conviction. Watts's greatest escapade was in Savan nah nearly two years ago. The adventur-ous young Atlantian went down to the Forest City and soon turned up in police circles in his old familiar role of burglar.

He told a story into the waiting ears of the Savannah detectives that made them shed tears. It paled into significance the Deadwood Dick stories, and even put to shame the exploits of the James boys. It was the story of his alleged adventures, made up of thrilling experiences, hair-breadth escapes, etc. The story was printed in the Savannah papers and telegraphed all over the country. It established Watts's fame. He got out of the trouble and once more appeared in his old haunts in Atlanta.

-A few weeks ago Watts was arrested for burglary and was released on bail furnished by his father, who is a highly respected citizen, and well thought of. He has been out since, the charge still hanging fire in the superior court.

On the night Forepaugh's circus was here, Mr. Albert Maner's home at West Simpson street was entered and bur-glarized while Mr. Maner and his family were at the circus. Mr. Maner is the wellknown railroad man. The burglary was about as complete a job as was ever done in that line of industry. Every article in the house was turned over and things were scattered all over the room. Goods amounting to over $200 were taken.

The case was placed in the hands of Detectives Etheridge and Walton. They hit upon an accidental clue day before yesterday, by finding some handkerchiefs in Watts's possession that were among the stolen goods. They began to watch Watts's movements, and were surprised vesterday. movements, and were surprised yesterday morning when he went back to jail, and was surrendered by his bondsmen.

Mas surrendered by his bondsmen.

The detectives continued their investigations and found a large quantity of the stolen goods. They then swore out a warrant against Watts for burglary. This they lodged with the jailer, and Watts will have to face it when he gets out of the first scrape.

first scrape.

Watts is a very young man and seems to have a mania for burglary. It is believed that he is slightly unbalanced men-

Detectives Taylor and J. B. Harris caught Ed Patrick, a negro, who burglarized a residence at No. 6 Ellis street several times yesterday. Patrick confessed his guilt. Some of the stolen property was recovered.

Last night Detective Harris arrested Flord Summers, a restaurant keeper on Wheat street. Some smoked meats were found in his possession, and the detective feels sure the goods were stolen.

SOL SMITH RUSSELL.

The Charming Comedian Received an Ovation Last Night.

Mr. Sol Smith Russell does everything that he undertakes so well that whatever the part he assumes; one on seeing it, is ready to say it is his best.

say it is his best.

Last night he delighted a large and discriminating audience at DeGive's, appearing in a droll, homely comedy, "Peaceful Valley."

The dialogue is bright and fresh, neither under the beautiful by reason of being overstrained for smartness nor so halting as to depend on the situations for effect. Mr. Russell interprets drollery with great charm. The simplicity and earnestness of his pathos win sympathy just as a plain, sincere, open character always does. He makes his audience feel with him as well as laugh with hin and at him. There are threads of tender senti-ment running through the play which Mr. Russell catches up delicately from time to time and weaves all about the hearts of his listeners. With a few skillful strokes striking pictures are sketched, contrasting the peace-fulness and content of rural life with the dark side of the metropolis. At the same there are incisive thrusts at many things dark side of the metropoles. At the same time there are incisive thrusts at many things which are accepted as conventional.

The play and the playing were alike exquisite. So thoroughly did the one entertain and the other awaken appreciation that at the end of the first act there was an unmistakable demand for Mr. Bussell's appearance. He responded and he did what few of his profession are noted for—he made a graceful, telling speech. He remarked that it was gratifying to find favor and to see that such a reception of his play was another indication of a new era in the drama. It is a hopeful sign when plays on the line of "Peaceful Valley" and "Alabama" supplant the blood, thunder and perspiration of the melodrama, the heavy idyl of the villain and the heroine. Mr. Russell spoke fluently for several minutes and retired amid enthusiastic applause. Personally he had an ovation.

His company sustains the minor characters most acceptably.

The same play will be given this afternoon and tonight. Mr. Russell's engagement will close with "The Poor Relation." But it is not "The Poor Relation" of old. The latter part of the pleec has been rewritten to its great improvement.

The Theatrical Event of the Season. The lovers of the classic drama will hall with enthusiasm the announcement of the coming engagement at DeGive's opera house of the great combination headed by the tragedians Frederick Warde and Louis James.

No attraction has met with such splendid and deserved success and the tour of this splendid organization has been a series of ovations. An account of the great demand for the company throughout the United States but one day could be secured for Atlanta, Thursday, November 3d. A mattnee performance will be given of Horas Christians. ance will be given of Henry Guy Carleton's romantic drama, "The Lion's Mouth," and a grand spectacular production of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" will be presented on Thurs-dur, night

The Richmond, Va., State comments thus on their recent engagement in Richmond:

The Richmond State comments thus upon their recent engagement in Richmond:

"Fred Warde and Louis James are actors of the highest order, their supporting company is composed of exceptionally good artists, and the staging of the plays which they present, in point of historic correctness and artistic beauty, has never been equaled by any traveling company.

"Mr. Warde is a man of great professional pride, progressive ideas and singularly fine taste, and this splendid enterprise of the Warde-James combination, conceived and developed by him, has done as much, perhaps, to elevate the stage, and at the same time make the "legitimate" pay, as anything eyer undertaken in the dramatic world.

"The public patronizes buriesque and 'trash' more now than formerly, it is said. But so long as we have such companies as the one referred to, the legitimate will never fall to draw crowded houses. The andiences here this week demoustrate that fact. All honor to the Warde and James management for their efforts."

Beautiful "Alabama." "Alabama" which is to be seen at the opera house Friday and Saturday next, is a very pretty love story of the south running on very quite lines. Unlike "Shenandoah," there are in it no thrilling scenes. In the latter the war was a reality and the music the martial fife and drum. In "Alabama" the war is but a memory, one that is unforgotten, it is true, and it threads throughout the romance of the play. The characters who move in the drama represent men who were chivalrous and brave, quick to take offense and quick to resent it. and women home-loving, gentle and true. The play gives an insight into the domestic life of the people of the south, their ways and speech, that pleases because it seems so natural and so much like their known charasteristics. We saw "Alabama" last senson as presented by company No. 2. Company No. 1 then was playing in the large northern cities. Every one was delighted with the production. This year it is company No. 1 which comes to Atlanta and it is composed of nearly all the members who produced first the play under the the management of Mr. Palmer. We can. therefore, expect not only a beautiful southern play, but also the rendition of it by a card of supreme excellence, by artists who contributed much to the first scenes of Mr. Augustus Thomas's creation. The theater goers of the great northern cities, the most eminent critics of the big northern papers have had nothing but the highest praise for these artists, and Atlanta will not remain behind in her appreciation of their merits.

At the Edgewood. Manager Kliebacker proposes to make a fea-ture of the engagement of Charles B. Han-ford's company in "Julius Caesar, at the Edgewood Avenue theater this week, and he has arranged his prices so that there will be mo advance.

Mr. Hanford's company is a thoroughly first-class one and because he is not emblazoned throughout the country is due to the fact that he is a new star. His performances, however, have met with the approval of the newspapers where he has played and the following is but one of the many criticisms. This is from The Washington Star:

"The performance of 'Julius Caesar,' at the Academy of Music, last night, resulted in 'a positive ovation for Mr. Charles B. Hanford, it was plain from the rise of the curtain that he was among friends. There was, however, no occasion to depend upon the generosity of friendship. It was a performance that stood critical scrutiny remarkably well. Mr. Hanford's Marc Antony stood out brilliantly amid surroundings that showed a praiseworthy regard for general effect. One of the most creditable features of his work is the entire lack of labored effort. He never tears a passion to tatters, and yet his impersonation is full of the subtle, sympathetic force that makes words which seem flat in the mouths of mediocre actors thrill with flery meaning when pronounced by one who is naturally an artist. He governs himself. He maintains unbroken self control without a trace of self consciousness. His reading is always admirable and he gives Antony the graceful personality that is so conspicuous in that character. Mr. Hanford's company is a thoroughly

THE DIAMOND MEDAL

Was Won in Denver by an Atlanta Lady.

MISS MARGARET BADGER CARRIES OFF

The Demorest Diamond Medal in the Great Oratorical Contest Before the W. C. T. U.

Miss Margaret F. Badger, of Atlanta, captured the Demorest diamond medal in the oratorical contest before the national and world's convention of the Woman' Christian Temperance Union in Denver

Miss Badger is not yet fourteen years of age and is a pupil at the Ira street grammar school, and is one of most brilliant school children in the south.

In the contest there were ten aspirants for the handsome medal, one of them being an orator twenty-four years of age. They came from all parts of the country, and Miss Badger's conquest is thereby made all the more pleasing to her southern

The national and world's convention of Woman's Christian Temperance Union has been in session in Denver for two or three days and has in attendance many delegates from Europe.

One of the strongest friends of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is that stanch, prohibitionist Mr. Demorest, who has found the organization a great aid to his hobby. In 1886 Mr. Demorest first joined hands with the Woman's Christian Temperance Union by offering a medal to the person delivering the best oration before the annual convention-the contest to be confined to children and grown people be confined to children and grown people under twenty-five years of age. The plan worked so well that Mr. Demorest made his proposition good for life, at the same time amending it so as to make it better. By his terms there are four classes of medals, one silver, the second a small gold one, the third a large handsome gold one, and the fourth a beautiful diamond medal. Every one entering the contest must begun with the silver medal. After having won that the party can contest for the small gold medal but for nothing more. Having won the small gold medal the contestant is eligible to enter for the large gold one and if again successful nothing but the diamond is out of his grasp.

his grasp.
Miss Badger now possesses all four med his grasp.

Miss Badger now possesses all four medals.

Up to two years ago Miss Badger lived in Philadelphia with her mother, who, after the death of the young lady's father married Mr. John S. Selby. While a resident of that state Miss Badger won the silver and then the small gold and again the large gold medals. When her parents came to Atlanta two years ago to reside the young lady brought her prized trophies with her. Just before the presents convention opened Mrs. Woodbury, of Philadelphia, wrote Miss Badger asking her to go to Denver as the representative of Pennsylvania. Miss Badger was eligible for the diamond contest, but she declined to go saying:

"Georgia is my home. I was born in the south and if I can't go as Georgia's representative I won't go at all."

The young lady's parents endorsed her decision and when Miss Badger left for Denver last week it was with the distinct understanding that she went as Georgia's representative.

And now that she has won the medal and four years, Georgia and all the south are proud of her.

Miss Badger is the daughter of Dr. George E. Badger, of North Carolina, who was a surgeon in the confederate army for four years. Her grandfather, Hon. George E. Badger, of North Carolina, was secretary of the navy under President William Henry Harrison, grandfather of President Harrison. The senior Badger was a member of the supreme court of North Carolina and was elevated to the bench before he was twenty-five years of age. He was a fine orator and an influential politician in the Old North State.

On her maternal side Miss Badger comes from a learned family. Her great-grand-father on that side was Justice Gerald Fitz-gibbon, of Dublin, Ireland, who presided at the trial of Daniel O'Connell and who delivered the charge. The grandson of the celebrated jurist is now chief justice of the court of appeals of Ireland and is a second cousin to Miss Badger.

Miss Badger is retiring in her manners. She is a great favorite with her schoolmates. She made the trip to Denver alone and will return Saturday. On her maternal side Miss Badger come

How the Sheriff Fooled Him.

Lumpkin, Ga., November 1.—(Special)—Since the jail has been remodeled it seems that Sheriff Holder thinks it ought to be used, and he is testing its ability to hold prisoners. Wednesday was not a very good day for catching coons, but Holder brought in two on that day. One of these was Lovett Peterson, a negro wanted in Quitman county for stealing hogs. For three years he has escaped capture, but now he breathes no longer the air of liberty. Sheriff Holder knew that Lovett had passed through town Wednesday, going westward and he soon started in pursuit of the notorious swine raiser. As the negro knew him, Mr. Holder disguised himself with a false beard. He overtook Lovett near Mr. Isaiah Moore's, and arrested him. The negro had no idea who Mr. Holder was until the later removed the beard, and then he exclaimed, "I might er known you was gwine ter ketch me." The other negro's name is Lewis Hunt. Work is progressing finely on the new bank building. They are making rapid progress, and the house will soon be ready for the large iron safes which have been received.
This is a piece of enterprise that all the people of this section should feel proud of,
for it will benift all classes, both in town and country. They will be ready for business by the 1st or 15th of next month.
The establishment of this bank in Carnesville, Ga., November 1.—(Special.)

The third party people met here for the purpose of perfecting plans for a co-operative newspaper. The scheme was put upon foot by the purchase of the a stock company formed. It will be known as the Reform Publishing Company, and it is probable that it will be removed to Royston, if it leaves here, which is highly probable.

Elberton, Barnesville and Royston all of the latter place. No permanent officers were elected today, only a temporary organization perfected. A Co-operative Third Party Paper.

A Sad Death in Savannah.

A Sad Death in Savannah.

Miss Laleah Adams, a sister of the late Judge A. Pratt Adams, of Savannah, died last night at her home in that city of congestion of the brain. She was a brilliant woman and as true and noble a character as ever lived.

She was devoted to her lamented brother, whose sad death a few weeks ago, shocked all Georgia. The grief was too great for her to blur and she sank rapidly. The news of her death strikes profound sorrow in the hearts of numberless friends who were deeply attached to her. Here in Atlanta where she had occasionly visited, she was loved even as in her native city.

An Examination of the Charges Recently

The Grady Cadets held a fully attended meeting last night.

Educational Matters in North Georgia. Jasper, Ga., November 1.—Special.)—A large crowd of the citizens of this county gathered at the courthouse yesterday in answer to a call for an educational meeting. The Baptists of north Georgia have decided to locate a college here and, our people are enthusiastic at the prospect of getting it. Colonel S. A. Darnell and Dr. S. M. Merrill addressed the people today at the meeting and a liberal subscription was made.

The college is to cost $20,000 and will be a great blessing to this part of the state. A financial committee was appointed and everything will be pushed with a vim till the building is completed. The Jasper band furnished excellent music for the occasion.

The Georgia Chautauqua.

Albany, Ga., November 1.—(Special.)—
The board of directors of the Georgia
Chautauqua Association held an important meeting here this morning. Mr. J.
S. Davis was elected president and Mr.
H. M. McIntosh secretary for the ensuing year. The reports from the secretary and treasurer were satisfactory. A movement will be made to get aid of the city in constructing a regular chautauqua building, which will answer better than the tabernacle tent now used. It was unanimously decided to hold the regular assembly in the spring, but the exact date of the opening was not fixed. It will probably be about the middle of May. The Georgia Chautauqua.

THE CROP REPORT

Issued by the Georgia Department of the Weather Bureau.

A WANT OF HEAT WITH LITTLE RAIN

The First General Frost Reported—The Total Yield of Cotton Sixty Per Cent. of That of Last Year.

The Georgia report of the federal weather serice was made public yesterday. It is the last report for this year. Mr. Park Merrill, the local observer has dem-Park Merrill, the local observer has demonstrated the great utility of the department. He is a worthy and capable officer. The past week has been marked by a man of heat, by little rainfall and by a fair amount of sunshine. The nights have been particularly cold, owing to the clear and dry atmosphere. On the morning of the 26th occurred the first general frost of the season, and its severity was such as to kill cost vegetation over nearly all the northmost vegetation over nearly all the northern half of the state. Almost to the southern border of the state light frosts were felt Although the frosts came about two weeks earlier than its average date, yet the fall has been on the whole an excep-tional one for the gathering of crops. Far-mers have been favored with abundance of fair, sunshiny and warm weather.

Specially full reports upon the cotton crop this week show a farther reduction to be necessary in the estimated yield. Conring that the late frosts have stopped all further maturing of late cotton, in the northern half of the state, the total yield cannot be over 66 per cent of a full crop. In the northern districts the frost was so severe that many bolls already developed become soft and cannot possibly open with the most favorable weather. The best results have been realized along a belt ex-tending from the Savannah river to the southwestern corner of the state. Along this belt the crop is estimated at 71 per cent of a full yield. The poorest result is in the southeastern counties, where 55 per cent is the estimate. Nine-tenths of the crop has been picked and the most of this is already marketed. In the northeast sec tion perhaps a fifth of the crop is still in the field, while in the southeast hardly twentieth remains unpicked.

The corn crop has proved about an average one for the state. In northern districts it seems somewhat below an average yield, bottom lands doing worst, while the yield on uplands is good. In the southern part of the state the crop is above the average Except in northern and western counties the crop is practically all gathered and here it will be housed within the next ten days.

Potatoes, both Irish and sweet, have given good crops. The only complaint made the eastern section where, on strong lands, they have been injured by too much rain-They are being rapidly dug and stored. The pea crop is small in the northwest, but in other sections the yield has been good, especially so in eastern counties. Turnips and late cabbage have been stunted by the recent der was the recent der Turnips and late cabbage have been stunted by the recent dry weather.

The crop of sorghum is light, but a good yield of cane has been grown in the southern and eastern sections. Grinding has commenced and the prospect is that a good quantity of syrup will be made. The crop of rice, especially inland rice, is as good as

As yet little plowing and sowing of fall grain has been done, the ground being too dry and hard. Some progress has been made in the northeast where the ground has been little moistened by heavy dews and frosts. There are hopeful indications that a large acreage will be laid in grain.

With this week the issue of a weekly weather crop bulletin by the Georgia weath er service will be suspended for this season. During the winter it is proposed to issue a monthly statement of weather conditions and of the status of farming operations which it is hoped will prove of interest and value. The publication of these bulletins was new and untried in Georgia. The inormation given has been collected by the voluntary co-operation of a large corps of reporters. That the service, both in point of minuteness with which the state is dis tricted and of character and quality of bul letins issued, compares favorably with similar services in states where they have been in operation for several years, is certainly creditable to the public spirit and enterprise of the citizens of Georgia. It is hoped that after the experience of the past season, we can secure a still better result another year.

THE CARNIVAL COMMITTEE.

A Meeting Will Be Held Today-The Trades Display Growing.

Display Growing.

The carnival directors held a special meeting yesterday and but very little was done. There will be another meeting today and a full attendance is desired.

The trades display committee is hard at work and that feature is growing daily. Five floats were entered today. The Western and Atlantic railroad. The Excelsior steam laundry.

The Garrow candy kitchen.

The Western and Atlantic road will give an exhibition of all the products that grow along their line—a most interesting float.

A GREAT FEATURE.

ir. Stanley Spencer, the Aereonaut, Will Be Worth Seeing.

Mr. Stanley Spencer, the Aereonaut, Will Be Worth Seeing.

One of the finest features of the carnival amusements will be the work of the famous baloonist, who has been engaged.

In a recent interview Mr. Spencer was quoted as saying: "I am twenty-four years old, London is my birthplace, as it was of my father and grandfather. I spring from nn aeronautical family. My grandfather, Mr. Edward Spencer, was a barrister by profession, but having made the acquaintance of the famous aeronaut, Mr. Green, he became infatuated with ballooning and devoted much time and a considerable portion of his income towards the science of ballooning, and, during his lifetime, made over three hundred voyages with his friend Mr. Green. My father, Mr. Charles Green Spencer, called after his godfather Mr. Green, adopted ballooning as a profession and founded our London firm of aeronaut and balloon manufacturers in Holloway. My father also carried on for some time a factery of gymnastic apparatus and he introduced the first bicycles into England. I have three brothers who follow the same profession as myself and even one of my sisters has, at times, made ascents and taken entire charge of a balloon. My father had us all carefully educated and I have passed some years in a leading mercantile house in London. But 'blood will tell,' and so I asked my father to let me join his profession, which I have now followed for eight years. My first ascent I made with my father when I was seven years old and up to date I have made 579 balloons. I have soared the whole world. In India I performed before the viceroy, the governors, the Indian princes and the carwitch of Russia, whom I met in Madras. I have been engaged to make a captive balloon ascent during the Acheen war in Sumatra, where I ascended in the midst of a battle, shot and shell flying about my ears, but I was engaged for. I spied from my balloon the various positions held by the enemy, made a sketch of them and delivered it into the hands of the general companding, who thanked me and had a decoration conferred on me later on. After that I visited China and Japan, where I performed before the emperor and empress in the imperial castle at Tokio. South America and South Africa I have also toured with great success, and I visited Canada this summer, doing the Montreal exposition in September. I never met with any accident whatever. My balloons and all my other gear are always strong and well made. My parachute, made of umbleached silk, is looked after by me as carefully as a mother looks after her baby and with this care bestowed upon my paraphernalia and my carefully trained body, I feel as safe in my occupation as a man who sits all day behind a deek. The highest altitude I ever attained was when I rose in a large gas balloon to a height of five miles. With my hot air balloon I have risen to 12,000 feet and made a parachute descent from thence. I have surprised a good many professional aeronauts by doing this, I assure you."

The Cheating and Swindling Case.

The cheating and swindling charge still rests against Beresford but will be disposed of at the adjourned session of the Floyd superior court on the 9th of this month.

"We have every reason to feel that Beresford's release will be secured through the United States supreme court," said Colonel Glenn. "The cheating and swindling case will have been disposed of by the time we are able to get before the supreme court.

"That case disposed of and the obstacle in the way of Beresford's release will be removed."

CHI PHI CONVENTION.

It Will Meet in New York City the 25th of This Month.

The annual convention of the Chi Phi fraternity will meet in the city of New York on the 25th day of the present month. It will be remembered that the last con-vention was held in Atlanta and that nearly, two hundred wearers of the "scarlet and blue" assembled in the Gate City from every part of the United States.

The occasion was rendered significant by the presence of Judge Emory Speer, Hon. R. W. Patterson, Professor H. C. White, the presence of Judge Emory Speer, Hon. R. W. Patterson, Professor H. C. White, Colonel Emmett Womack and many other diguitaries of the state who responded to eloquent toasts at the annual banquet which was held at the Kimball house.

The forthcoming banquet in New York promises to be in every respect a magnificent affair, and the local Chi Phis of the big metropolis have already begun their elaborate preparations.

No college secret organization in America enjoys a wider reputation or a more secure establishment in the affections of the college world than the Chi Phi fraternity. Many of the most distinguished men in Georgia are numbered among the fraternity's alumni, while the prominence of the organization in other parts of the country due to the notoriety achieved by its members is equally as pronounced.

The lamented Henry Grady was a very enthusiastic member and held at one time the highest office in the bestowal of the order.

DOWN AT MERCER-

fome Talk of Politics-Preparing to Meet the Techs-Mercer's Athletic Spirit.

Macon, Ga., October 31.—A few weeks Macon, Ga., October 31.—A few weeks ago it was announced in the chapel that Tom Watson wanted to speak to the boys. Although he is an old Mercer boy the announcement was hissed. Tom, however, did not put in his appearance and was saved the embarrassment of a very cold reception.

Since then your correspondent has taken the pains to hunt up the devotees of the tenth district "seed distributor" and third party leader. Here is the result:

Senior Class—Twenty-one members; two third party men.

third party men.
Junior Class—Forty members; three third

Junior Class—Forty members; three third party men.

Sophomore Class—Forty-five members; one third party man.

Freshman Class—Fifty-five members; one third party man.

This is a good showing for Mercer and is an index to the future politics of Georgia. Those who do claim Watson for their leader are special favorites of some third party man and follow him for the sake of friendship or have relatives who were elected in the last race as representatives on the third party ticket. Mercer is thoroughly democratic and such enthusiasm as the boys sometimes indulge in is not enjoyed very heartily by those who have strayed off into the people's party.

Football Again.

The college teams are now hard at work

Football Again.

The college teams are now hard at work preparing for the games they expect to play this season. The tirst challenge came from the Technological school, of Atlauta. The boys accepted at once. The Mercer boys are noted for their hospitality and the "Techs" will meet with a royal reception and entertainment during their stay. The boys say it is Mercer's time to win now and they intend to do it. Another challenge comes from Chapel Hill, N. C. The game is to be played either in Raleigh, N. C., or Atlauta. The association has it under consideration and the result will be known later. Of course the boys will play all they can, but the faculty has something to do with their playing and they are afraid to rush too many games upon them at once.

Mercer's big center rush, may be lost. He has not only won a state reputation as a great football player, but other states know him, and now Alabama comes over to Geor-gia and offers him big inducements to play here. An alumnus of the Agricultural and Mili-An alumnus of the Agricultural and Military college of Auburn, Ala., proposed to pay all of Mr. Brown's college expenses if he would go to Auburn to college. Of course they want him to join their football team, but will not require him to play more than half an hour each day. This is an excellent offer and bona fide, therefore, Mr. Brown has the matter under serious consideration. Still, the boys are loth to give him up and will make strong efforts to keep him.

SEALED BIDS

Completing Manchester's Col-For

The Work Rushing On-Other New Houses-Distinguished New Citizens.
An Illustrious Georgian.

In another column of The Constitution will be found an advertisement for sealed bids to lay the brick on the Southern Bapbids to lay the brick on the Southern Bap-tist Female College at Manchester.

The builders of the college have not been idle a day during this golden autum. If they have not literally been making hay while the sun shines, they have actually been making brick while the weather was good. Brick cannot be made in damp, bad weather, and so with a proper idea of dis-natch the college authorities have stooped patch the college authorities have stopped all other work only to concentrate attention upon the collection of brick to build more rapidly when work was recommenced. And so during all this sunshiny weather steadily prepared, and now, as soon as answers are received to the advertisement for bids work will be recommenced with a rush and the wells of the stately structure will grow like magic under the hand of the will grow like magic under the hand of the mason.

On the other side of the railroad the solid foundation of the Georgia Military Institute and caputauqua have been erecting for three weeks the relay of brick to crown them. And here the work of brick making has been carried on in great proportions. The military institute people are burning now a gigantic kiln, which, when the fires die out this week, will hold enough brick to build the entire college, and with the whole material on hand at one time the institute will go up with a rush. The master spirit of the movement told The Constitution yesterday that he expected to have the institute up, all the brick laid, and the structure covered and roofed in before the winter rains of late December.

And so the fixed centers of this rapidly revolving suburb are every day growing more tangible and shapely.

Meanwhile the suburb itself grows apace. Several new houses are underway since the list was last published. Some very distinguished names have been added to its list of citizens and all of these will be presented to the world within a few days. One Georgian, illustrious in his own and other states, is the latest acquisition and his settlement here will give a new and impressive emphasis to the classic flavor of the ideal community.

Up to Date

These are the kind we sell. Elegant in every respect. Newest patterns, latest styles—that's what they all say, of course. But will you please notice the difference. Look at the construction, style and finish. Some Overcoats, you observe, hang—some fit. Ours are made to fit. You can get no better ones ordermade. Only difference between ours and the best Tailor-made is in the price. Ours don't cost you Tailor prices. You pay no more for prices. You pay no more for our "Up to Date" Overcoats than others ask you for their "Out of Date" Overcoats. Which do you want?

Decisions Rendered Monday, October 31, 1892.

REPORTED FOR THE CONSTITUTION

By Peeples and Stevens, Reporters to the Supreme Court of Georgia.

Connor v. Hall & Co. Injunction. Nulsance, Jurisdiction. Res adjudicats. Before Judge Richard H. Clark. Kulton superior court. Where a person who was cited to appear before the recorder's court of the city of Atlanta, to show cause why he should not abate a nulsance, appeared and among other defenses pleaded to the jurisdiction of the court, and this plea was overruled and the case tried upon the merits and he was ordered to remove the nulsance, and thereupon took the case to the superior court by certiorarl, in which he did not assign upon the judgment overruling his plea to the jurisdiction but complained of other alleged errors, and his certiorarl was overruled and the judgment overruling it was affirmed by the supreme court, the judge of the superior court did not err in refusing to grant him an injunction to prevent the city marshal from executing the judgment by removing the nulsance. Judgment affirmed.

Simmons & Corrigan, for plaintiff in error. Speairs & Roan and J. A. Anderson, contra.

Simmons & Corrigan, for plaintiff in error. Speairs & Roan and J. A. Anderson, contra. Hammond v. Hammond. Divorce. Custody of child. Res adjudicata. Habens corpus. Before Judge Richard H. Clark. Fulton superior court.

1. Where a total divorce is granted in a court of Alabama, and by the decree the custody of the only child is given to the mother, the effect is to put the mother, as to the control of the child, in the place of the father, and make her custody and control legal. Hence habeas corpus at the instance of the father for the possession of the child on the ground that it is illegally detained and that the mother is not a fit and proper person to rear it, will not lie.

2. In order for the father or any other citizen to obtain possession of the child from the mother by habeas corpus, after a decree awarding it to her, the applicant must make the sworn allegation required by section 4612 of the code. The matter of this allegation relates to the condition of the child, and is not covered by charges to the effect merely that the person having custody of the child is an unfit and improper person to retain control of it.

Judgment reversed.

L. R. Ray, J. L. Brown and Bishop & Mc-Whorter, for plaintiff in error.

Calhoun, King & Spalding and G. W. Stevens, contra-

Steele v. The Atlanta Land Improvement Co. Illegality. Judgment. Principal and sure-ty. Estoppel. Dismissal of levy. Before Judge Marshall J. Clarke. Fulton superior

Judge Marshall J. Clarke. Fulton superior court.

1. To the levy of an execution issued from a judgment against several defendants alleged in the petition upon which the judgment was rendered to be joint promissors in the contract sued upon, illegality will not lie in favor of one of them upon the ground that the contract shows upon its face that he was merely a surety and that the judgment was not rendered against him as such, where it appears that he was duly served and made no defense to the action.

3. It is not a good ground of illegality that a levy upon the property of another defendant in the judgment was dismissed by the plaintiff without an order of court and the execution afterwards levied upon the property of the affiant. Dismissing the levy dismissed the case, and any plaintiff may dismiss his case in vacation. Code section 3447.

3. The dismissal of a levy on the lands of the principal is no ground for illegality on the part of a sprety. Manry v. Sheppard, 57 Ga.

Budgment affirmed.

dgment affirmed. ndler & Thomson, for plaintiff in error. lhoun, King & Spalding, contra.

Bunkley v. The State. Criminal law. Evidence. Before Judge Cobb. City court of Clarke county.

While the direct evidence was conflicting and the circumstances not quite conclusive. the jury having found the accused guilty, and the trial judge being satisfied with their verdict, this court will not interfere with his discretion in refusing a new trial.

Judgment affirmed.

McCurry & Proffitt, by brief, for plaintiff in error.

Sylvanus Morris, solicitor, by brief, contra COUNTY POLITICS.

The Candidates Are Bestirring Themselves

for the Coming Election. The Fulton county courthouse for the next five weeks will be the center of a great deal of political excitement.

It will be a lively and interesting cam-paign, and the officers who "hold the fort" well as the candidates who are seeking to deprive them of a job realize that they will have to do a good deal of hard fighting.

Never before in the history of the county has the excitement been more intense than it is at present, and yet while some of the offices are in violent dispute and as many as four candidates have put in their claims for the office of sheriff, still there are other departments under the same statue of justice that are perfectly serene and tran-

For example, Judge Henry Tanner has opposition in the claims of Captain George Forbes, while Sheriff Morrow has several tickets formed against him, yet just across the hallway Judge W. L. Calhoun sits back in his chair and smiles as complacently as

Mr. Andy Stewart, the tax collector, who sits at his desk in the little building on Hunter street, is also in good spirits because he can quietly look over the field and not see a can quietly look over the field and not see a ripple of opposition.

Two of the most popular men in the county are Júdge Lowndes Calhoun and Mr. Andy Stewart. There are several "men about town" who would like to have their jobs, but none of them get up early enough in the morning.

Mr. T. M. Armistead and Mr. John Gatins, the tax receivers are also likely to have things their own way. They have each carried a rabbit's foot in their pockets, so it is claimed, and the effect of their tallsman has been to distance all their competitors. The books in their office speak for themselves, and everybody who has seen them says that the books were never better kept.

The county elections will occur the second week in December.

In Olden Times
People overlooked the importance of pernanently beneficial effects and were satis fied with transient action, but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently cure habitual constipation, wellinformed people will not buy other laxa-tives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

To be free from sick headache, biliousness constipation, etc., use Carter's Little Liver Pills. Strictly vegetable. They gently stim ulate the liver and free the stomach from bile
